REPORT BOMB FALLS ON KAISER'S TRAIN

CLERGYMAN HAD 12 WIVES

WOMEN IN BOSTON, CROOK'S DUPES

An amazing record of love piracies of the "Reverend" Arthur Worthington of New Hamburg, N. Y., revealed today, includes a Boston girl, a rich Boston matron and a Providence girl among his romance victims.

This wizard in crime, who fled from the Presbyterian pulpit at New Hamburg just before being unfrocked, has a dozen or more marriages, elopements and desertions charged against him.

He fleeced his "wives" and other dupes out of amounts estimated to total a round million dollars.

His real name is given as Samuel Oakley Crawford and he is now supposed to be in refuge in Montreal.

With destrtion of one wife and baby and a three-year prison term to his discredit, he married a Boston girl in 1874, deserted her, "married" and deserted wives Nos. 3 and 4 in Chicago and Toronto, returned to Boston in 1883 and met the wife of a rich Bostonian at a spiritualistic seance.

He persuaded this woman to elope with him. He deserted her in West Virginia. She is still living.

The next year he arrived in Providence as "General A. B. Ward," married a girl of good family in her parents' home, took her to one of the Dakotas and abandoned her two years later.

Boston also figures in another way it was the National Detective Agency of Boston which asked for the man's arrest as far back as 1889—the same year he deserted his Providence bride. The detective notice was worded as follows:

USED MANY NAMES.

WANTED—Samuel Oakley Crawford, alias Eugene Samuel Bouvier Walton, Major Eugene Bouvier, Eugene Bonner, E. R. Bannerton, Monsieur Bennatheau, Major Horace Oakley Wood, Arthur Wood, W. D. Wood, Arlington Buckingham Wadsworth, Dr. A. B. Worthington, or any other name or combination of above.

Has been a lawyer, banker, political orator, real estate operator, spiritualist, litterateur, mining speculator and organizer, bigamist and confidence man generally. Has operated in New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin, Texas, Utah, Kansas, California, West Virginia, Georgia and Washington Territory.

Is wanted for $4,000 forgery, indictment for larceny, money obtained under false pretences, also bail bond surrender. Has eight living wives and three daughters; four wives have obtained divorces on the ground of desertion.

Is devout and develish by turns, but always suave and sympathetic, unprincipled, but not dangerous or physically wicked.

Dispatches today from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where the sensational details of Worthington's career have been gradually collected, called attention to the point that the old detective advertisement of 1889 did not have all the data on the man, even up to that time.

Were a complete list of the gentle-

JURY WRANGLES OVER FATE OF WOMAN WHO KILLED HUSBAND

The five Beutinger children, who were anxiously waiting for their mother to come home from court, where she has been on trial for the murder of their father. Left to right, the children are Margaret, eight and one-half years; Frederick, seven; William, two and one-half; Marie, five and one-half, and Christopher, Jr., four.

By International News Service.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 28.—Five small children are waiting wonderingly today for their mother to leave off all this strange business in the courthouse here which they do not understand and come back to them for good, and hundreds of other people in Newark are waiting breathlessly for the report of the jury.

The mystified quintet are the children of Mrs. Margaret Claire Beutinger, on trial for her life on the charge of murdering her husband, Christopher Beutinger, well-to-do coal broker.

The jury was still wrangling over the case today.

For hour after hour the children and the meagre crowd in the courtroom waited for the jury of the Essex County Court to render their verdict, but surprise turned into incredulity, and incredulity into amazement, as the hours passed and no verdict was returned.

LOCKED IN FOR NIGHT.

At 11:15 p. m. the jury was locked up for the night.

The slim, dark little defendant plainly showed the strain as the hands of the courthouse clock pointed toward midnight.

At a late hour it was reported that the jury stood overwhelmingly for acquittal. One man, it was said, was standing out for a verdict of guilty in one of three degrees pointed out by Judge Martin in his charge.

Eleven men were rumored to hold the belief that the horrible story of Beutinger's inhuman treatment of his slender little wife entitled her to an instantaneous verdict of acquittal.

CITES BUYING REVOLVER.

Courthouse rumor had it that the disagreeing juror insisted Beutinger's murder was deliberately planned by his wife. He instanced the purchase of the revolver with which the murder was committed and its concealment in the wife's room the day before the killing.

The last day of the trial was marked by the usual celerity in the examination of witnesses and summing up. Observers thought Judge Martin's charge leaned slightly in favor of the defendant, although her chief counsel, Robert H. McCarter, objected vigorously to certain portions of it.

The Court reminded the jury that it could convict the defendant either of first or second degree murder or of manslaughter. He told them under a new State law they could recommend life imprisonment even if they found her guilty of first degree homicide.

The judge read Mrs. Beutinger's dramatic story of the killing. He said she was justified in shooting if she considered herself in danger of serious bodily harm.

Woman Burglar Who Loves to Rob Looted 100 Homes

By International News Service.

Chicago, Oct. 28. — Mrs. Nellie Hantz, forty-eight, has been a burglar for months, and she has robbed more than one hundred houses, but has kept her husband in ignorance all this time, she admitted today.

Mrs. Hantz, detected entering a house, was arrested, and in her home the police found a large array of burglar tools and loot worth $1,500 hidden beneath a mattress.

"I love to rob places," she said. "I'd keep on being a burglar if I had a million. But I am afraid of the dark, so I did all my robbing in the daylight."

Hantz, astounded, is heartbroken. The couple have a daughter fourteen years old.

9 MORE SHIPS SUNK

8,000 TON STEAMER BLOWN UP

By International News Service.

London, Oct. 28.—A dispatch to the Morning Post from Christiana says that German submarines have sunk nine more Norwegian merchant ships within the past twenty-four hours. Among them was the 8,000-ton steamer Soda.

Practically the whole press of Norway is backing up the attitude of the government on the submarine question. The Verdensgang declares that the killing of so many sailors by German submarines will unquestionably make bad blood between the two nations. The Tidens Tegn says that Norway cannot be coerced.

Zurich, Oct. 28.—Supporters of a ruthless submarine warfare in Germany are reported to have won over Field Marshal von Hindenburg, the Chief of Staff, and Dr. von Bethmann-Hollwegg, the Chancellor. Both have been opposing a drastic U-boat campaign.

A dispatch received today said that "German submarining will be greatly increased as the result of a conference between the Chief of Staff and the Chancellor."

German newspapers print dispatches telling of the sinking of twelve Norwegian ships in the Arctic because they were carrying contraband. It is declared by the German press that "the Norwegian government will find it cannot suppress submarining by a stroke of the pen."

RUSSIANS ADMIT CARPATHIAN LOSS

GERMANS STOP EXPORT OF IRON

By International News Service.

Copenhagen, Oct. 28.—The German government has decided to prohibit the export of iron to neutral States because of the growing needs of the army, says a dispatch received here today.

MONARCH'S ENGINEER KILLED

Paris, Oct. 28.—A Zurich dispatch says that an allied aviator dropped a bomb upon a train on which the Kaiser was riding, killing the engineer. The dispatch gave no details.

There have been many reports during the war of attempts to bomb the Kaiser's train or his headquarters.

There have been stories of how the houses in which he stayed were protected with wire netting and sandbags against aerial attacks, and there have been other stories of how his trains sped across the country under guard, and unostentatiously.

When the war began it was reported that he travelled in a snow-white train, with the roof painted to blend into the earth, but this practice—if it every existed—was soon abandoned, as a matter of necessity, to protect him from allied bombs.

There have been no rumors of anything so nearly successful as this attack upon the German War Lord, however.

A few days ago the British reported that an aviator had dropped a bomb on a German troop train, wrecking it.

It may be that report referred to this incident, and that the aviator did not even know the Kaiser was on the train he was bombing.

The reply is not expected to be given out for several days.

DEUTSCHLAND MAY BE NEAR NORFOLK

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 28.—A German submarine, believed to be the Deutschland, is reported here to be just outside the Virginia Capes approaching port.

PARTIAL VERDICT ON RIOT

Mayor Albert L. Bartlett of Haverhill was found not guilty on the first count in connection with the Haverhill riots case and the jury disagreed upon the second counts ,when the jury reported in the Salem Court today.

Alderman Hoyt was discharged on both counts, while the jury disagreed upon the connection with the riots in the instances of Aldermen Christopher C. Cook, Roswell L. Wood and Albert E. Stickney. The jury was discharged.

JURY OUT ALL NIGHT.

The jury was out all night, being taken to breakfast in Lawrence after which they boarded a trolley car for Salem. When court opened at Salem the jury reported to Judge Quinn that they had failed to agree and asked instructions. They were sent back to reconsider.

After the jury had reported its findings they were discharged. This terminates one of the most sensational political cases of recent times in Haverhill.

The three defendants upon whom the disagreement occurred are still held pending disposition of their cases by the district attorney and the court.

REPORT $21,000 BANK ROBBERY

A sum of money, said to amount to $21,000, is reported missing on account of a mysterious theft from the National Shawmut Bank, or from a representative of that institution. The alleged theft is reported to have occurred this noon. But officials of the bank and the police have made such a mystery of it that none of the details are yet known. One story had it that a messenger, carrying funds or securities belonging to the bank, left the institution at noon and did not return, and it was reported that the loss occurred by this means.

PASTOR IS BIGAMIST AND WIZARD OF CRIME

man's accomplishments to date compiled it would have to include also his imaginary military career, of which he thought so much that as time passed he promoted himself successively to the ranks of captain, major, colonel and finally made himself a general.

And it should be added that he was an actor—and probably a good one; a pseudo Christian Science healer, a preacher in the Mormon Temple at Salt Lake City, head of a free love propaganda that had offices in Forty-second street, Manhattan; an insurance agent, a self-styled judge, a reformer, total abstinence orator, a real student in the Columbia University Law School, a Unitarian pastor, a persistent swindler of women and an arch priest of cults too many to list here.

DUPES, AMONG THEM OLD MEN AND WOMEN, TELL PATHETIC TALES

Also a few more wives could be added to the eight listed in the police paper, one of whom, known to Poughkeepsie still as Mrs. Worthington, is living there with her four children and is highly respected. And regions as far away as Tasmania, New Zealand and Australia might be added as scenes of his operations.

Throughout the day sharp-faced, bearded farmers who seemingly could no more be separated from their savings than from the collection basket which each Sunday they passed into the pews in Crawford's church in New Hamburg, streamed into Poughkeepsie to tell and retell tales of the money they had lent to their beloved spiritual guide of the last four years—tales which they had kept a secret until the stories about the unfrocking of Crawford appeared.

His harvest of half a century of astoundingly persistent criminality has been placed by investigations up to the hundreds of thousands of dollars, even as high as $1,000,000 by some. With only partial returns received from Dutchess, Orange and other counties it is said authoritatively that the tall, slender "clergyman" with the Sothern Cunnel makeup had been depositing several thousand dollars a year in a Poughkeepsie bank on a salary of only $1,000 a year.

The tales of old men and women, some wofully pathetic, have been told by the victims to the Dutchess County clergymen and business men, who rub their brows in a puzzled, mystified way, as if trying to rub into their brains some understanding of the seemingly unbelievable.

As sad a story as any is thold by the Rev. and Mrs. F. J. Stanley, retired missionaries of Newburgh-on-Hudson, who are now destitute old gentlefolk because just before Crawford disappeared from Dutchess County a few weeks ago he borrowed the last $1,500 of their savings on the strength of a story he had used in many lands—that a wealthy relative had just died and had left a vast estate that would come into his possession as soon as certain legal technicalities were attended to.

Their story is but one of many. Under the close protection of the Rev. Dr. Alexander Alison of Cold Spring, Moderator of the North River Presbytery, and of Chester Husted, a lawyer of Poughkeepsie, is a manuscript of 20,000 words that tells the story of Crawford's career from boyhood to the present day.

MANUSCRIPT HIDDEN.

With the unfrocking of "the Rev. Dr. Worthington" Thursday, however, the incident is closed, so far as the Presbytery is concerned; and therefore the Rev. Dr. Alison and other churchmen gently but firmly refused to release the text of the manuscript for publication or to discuss the case in detail.

But from newspaper files and clippings, court records, police compilations, prison records at Albany and elsewhere and from other absolutely authoritative sources which were open not only to the church investigators, but to others as well, the complete story of Crawford's career is available to all who desire to delve into it.

Worthington came of good people, on the paternal side at least. His grandfather and great-grandfather were Methodist clergymen and his father, now dead, was employed in the New York customs service.

He was born at Saugerties, N. Y., in 1848 and therefore is now sixty-eight years old. All the schooling he ever had ended when he left the grammar grades of his native town when sixteen years old, or in the days of the Civil War to enter the army. He was too young to fight and therefore served as an orderly until the end of the war—the one bright spot in his active career.

WAS AT COLUMBIA.

After the war he returned to New York and studied law at Columbia, finishing his studies there with the class of 1867. From Manhattan he went to Albany, where he was selling insurance when he met a good looking girl working as a telegrapher in Albany. He induced her to accompany him to Manhattan, where he was married in a Baptist church in 1868. Crawford took his bride to Philadelphia, where they lived almost two years. Then he deserted his first wife and her infant daughter and returned, nothing daunted, to her home city of Albany to sell more insurance.

He bought some houses there, but the transaction was so shady that he was arrested and on October 11, 1870, was sentenced to serve three years in the Albany county penitentiary.

When discharged from prison on June 10, 1873, he headed for Boston, where in the Spring of 1874, posing as a bachelor, he married the daughter of a Boston clairvoyant.

That was a busy marital year for him, for in a short time he deserted his Boston "bride" and went to Chicago. By this time he had promoted himself, being now known as Major E. S. H. Walton, a real estate promoter. On September 3, 1874, he married the daughter of a prominent Chicago Judge, forged the judge's name—he was and is a remarkably able forger—for $3,000, borrowed money right and left from his wife's relatives and deserted her.

ROBBED MORMONS IN UTAH AND SPOKE IN THEIR GREAT TEMPLE

In 1875 Worthington turned up in Utah, where he spoke in the Mormon temple, got $5,000 out of the Mormons and fled from the State with the money. He then landed at Kansas City, Mo., where in 1879-1877, under the name of Eugene Bonner, he got into financial mixups that caused the Kansas City police to offer the munificent reward of $50 for his arrest.

But he escaped to Detroit, joined the Ellen Blythe Theatrical Company as an actor in 1878, under the name of Bennateau and married a girl in the company while playing in Toronto December 26, 1878. With his actress wife he went to New Lisbon, Wis., in the Spring of 1879, "bought" a fine house and persuaded a local lawyer of standing to annex him as a law partner.

He practiced law three years there, borrowed right and left again, forged bonds and checks and finally deserted the actress and the three children born to them. She went back on the stage, saved every penny she could for years and then returned to New Lisbon and paid the creditors he had left behind him. Then she died.

AN ENGLISH TOURIST.

During the early eighties he traveled as "an English tourist" along the Northern Pacific Railroad, flimflaming as he wandered, and then catching the next train out of town. In April, 1883, he was back in Boston and met a wealthy married woman, who is still living, at a spiritual seance. He took up spiritualism, persuaded the wealthy woman to leave her husband and the couple eloped to Charlestown, West Virginia. There he victimized a wealthy coal man named Dana out of $3,000, Crawford's name now being "Judge John D. Crawford."

On March 10, 1888, he deserted the Boston woman and fled from Charlestown with all her money. He stopped off next at Griffin Ga., met a pretty girl belonging to a rich family and promptly married her. They went to Europe on their wedding tour, the newest "bride" paying the expenses. Then the couple returned to Griffin, where Crawford induced the bride to start him as the head of a private bank. She let him have $29,000 to go to Cincinnati to buy safes and other fixtures. He never came back.

NEXT, A GENERAL.

Out in Spokane, Wash., he blew in $20,000 in a year—his tastes are still high—and next showed up in Providence, R. I., where as "General A. B. Ward" he was married in November, 1887, to a South Providence young woman in her home in Public street by the Rev. Daniel Henshaw of All Saints Episcopal Church of Providence. "General" and Mrs. Ward went to Grand Forks, N. D., and cut a social swath. During the Dakota residence Benjamin Harrison ran for the Presidency, whereupon the "General" stumped Indiana for Harrison and later claimed he had "carried the State" for the candidate.

DESERTED ANOTHER WIFE.

He deserted the Providence girl in North Dakota and arrived in Manhattan in 1889. The advertising of a Mr. and Mrs. John J. Plunkett, who headed a pseudo Christian Science-Free Love cult at 13 West Forty-second street, attracted him. The Plunketts took him into the firm and in time, a short time, he induced Plunkett to give up Mrs. Plunkett to him, whereupon the "General" and Mrs. Plunkett were married by an "agreement" ceremony and continued the business.

PLAYS OLD GAME IN NEW ZEALAND AND RUNS AWAY FROM HIS "WIFE"

The Manhattan newspapers got after the "General" about this time, so he decided to leave. But for once he had a "bride" who refused to let him depart unaccompanied. In August, 1890, the "General" and his latest wife turned up in a town called Christ Church, New Zealand, where they were known as Brother and Sister Worthington—an alias he has clung to ever since. He revived his cult there, made money hand over fist, and finally deserted Mrs. Plunkett for a new affinity he had run into in New Zealand.

FORCED TO FLEE.

New Zealand gave him the gate because of shady work, and he and his New Zealand affinity fled to Hobart, Tasmania. They were chased from Hobart in less than four months, and departed for Melbourne, Australia. Here success came again until "Worthington" flimflammed a wealthy widow out of $6,000 there. He and the newest missus fled to Sydney, but he was brought back to Melbourne and was tried and sent to jail for seven years.

Released from jail in 1909 he ran into a wealthy Presbyterian from this country to whom Crawford told a story that he was a Unitarian minister anxious to get into the Presbyterian fold. The American traveler helped him out of Australia.

He wandered in Europe until 1911, when he showed up here, not far from his birthplace, and told local Presbyterian clergymen that he was a graduate of Oxford, an ordained minister, and had had papers to prove his status, but had lost them in a shipwreck at sea. The North River Presbytery liked him, just as every one he met seemed to be won by him, and accepted him tentatively. They kept "Worthington" on probation for a year and then he was assigned to the Presbyterian Church at New Hamburg.

GLAD TO HELP HIM.

For four years the old and the young of New Hamburg had greeted affectionately the tall, white haired clergyman, reaching his seventies, but still with the carriage of a Kentucky colonel of stageland, as he passed along the village streets. When financial troubles assailed him, which was often, men and women with little savings and big were proud to open their purses to help him.

From New Hamburg on many nights members of his flock would journey to Poughkeepsie to hear him, an active head of the Law and Order League of that city, thunder against the saloon evil. Always on Sundays they would make their way to the little Presbyterian church in New Hamburg whose destinies he directed and listen with the absorbed attention in which only a preacher of ability and much personal magnetism can hold an audience.

He might have been there still—preaching on Sundays and coming to Poughkeepsie on week days to reform the city—if he had not overworked his right, or borrowing, hand. The Rev. Dr. Allison, the moderator, became suspicious and by untiring and very intelligent detective work finally unearthed Crawford's whole career and placed it before an investigating church committee.

At the first signs of real trouble, or toward the end of the past Summer, "the Rev. Mr. Worthington" went away from Poughkeepsie, leaving his wife and four children, one of whom is a very talented young woman, to shift for themselves. It is believed that he is now in Canada, late advices saying that he had been seen recently in Montreal.

WAR SUMMARY

Whatever Rumanian and Russian force remains in the Dobrudja, it has lost its identity as a fighting force. This was revealed today by the announcement that the Teutonic forces have reached the line of Hirsova, some forty-five miles north of the railroad from Constanza to Cernavoda.

To reach the Hirsova line they must have advanced a distance of more than ten miles a day, and they could not do that against any effective resistance.

The Russ-Ruman army caught in the pen north of the railroad must be regarded as an almost total loss. The only question is the size of that force. It may be that the bulk of the defending troops escaped across the Cernavoda bridge before it was destroyed.

The advance to Hirsova, furthermore, secures to the Teutons a spot on the river bank whence a crossing is relatively easy, for there are no marshes on either side just there. And it puts the Mackensen army in a position to strike northward, unite with Falkenheyn, and cut off all the heart of Rumania from her Russian ally.

That the Danube has been crossed by the Teutons at some point may be announced at any time now.

A spirited little naval clash occurred in the English Channel yesterday. It was precipitated by a daring German raid on the cross-channel transport service. Ten German destroyers participated. The number of English fighting ships in action is not known.

The British admit that they got the worst of it, although they call the raid a failure. The British admissions and the German claims are widely at variance. The rival versions may be summarized thus:

British—German losses, two destroyers; British losses, two destroyers, one transport.

German—German losses, none; British losses, eleven steamers, two or three destroyers, one transport.

The two versions cannot be reconciled. Sympathy will determine which each individual will believe. If the Germans caught the British off their guard—as seems probable, for there was a high sea, a fog, and the thing had never before been attempted—the Germans may have accomplished what they claim. If the British were not caught napping, the British version is probably true.

Save for artillery combats, the Somme and Verdun fronts were quiet. Elsewhere there was no activity of any importance.

AUSTRALIANS VOTE ON CONSCRIPTION

By International News Service.

Sydney, N. S. W., Oct. 28.—Australia is voting today in a referendum election on the question of conscription. Women are voting as well as men. The question is having a grave effect on the commonwealth government. The Minister of the Treasury, the vice-president of the executive council and the assistant Minister of Marine have already resigned.

FRENCH DRIVE CLOSER TO FORT VAUX

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Oct. 28.—Battling beneath the glare of a night cannonade, French troops on the Verdun front have captured a fortified quarry northeast of Fort Douaumont, the War Office announced today. By this stroke the French have crept nearer to their main objective, Fort Vaux.

The attack was made with grenades and the communique says that it was carried out brilliantly.

In the sector of Fort Douaumont there was a brisk artillery duel throughout the night.

The text of the communique follows:

"On the Somme front there was an intermittent cannonade.

"North of Verdun there was a very lively artillery duel.

"At Douaumont our troops have brilliantly taken by hand grenades a quarry organized by the enemy northeast of Douaumont.

"On all other points of the front the night was calm."

Teutons Break Roumanian Power

Berlin, via Sayville Wireless, Oct. 28.—Russo-Rumanian resistance in Dobrudja has now broken down, the War Office announced today. Five hundred more prisoners have been captured there by Field Marshal von Mackensen's army group. In Transylvania the advance of the Austro-German forces continues. South of Kronstadt (Brasso), the German allies have reached Partzuga valley.

The German official report on operations in the Rumanian theatre of war follows:

"Transylvanian front—Fighting in the eastern frontier valleys continues. South of Kronstadt, or Brasso, we delivered a surprise attack against the Rumanians, capturing a height. By sharp pressure we extended our lines as far as Partzuga valley. Otherwise the situation is not essentially changed.

"Army group of Field Marshal von Mackensen—In northern Dobrudja our pursuing detachments of troops are now meeting with but little resistance from the enemy. Everything indicates that the enemy's retreat was most precipitate. Five hundred more isolated prisoners and several munitions columns and baggage trains were captured."

CHANNEL FIGHT RESULT STILL IN DOUBT

The results of the battle in the English Channel yesterday were still in doubt today.

The British admit their losses were heavier than those of the Germans.

The action was precipitated by a raid of ten German destroyers against the traffic between Folkestone and Boulogne. The German destroyers slipped through the Straits of Dover and Calais and struck at the English and French craft under cover of fog and a high sea.

The British traffic hereabouts is protected by a line of outpost steamers, armed for defence against submarines, which cruise constantly back and forth, patrolling the route.

"AT LEAST ELEVEN SUNK."

The Germans say that "at least eleven" of these outpost steamers were sunk.

The German raid was directed primarily against the transports which carry troops and munitions across the channel. One of these ships, the Queen, was sunk by the Germans, and her loss is admitted by the British.

The Germans say they sunk also "two or three" destroyers or torpedo boats which were assisting in guarding the traffic across the channel, and the British admit the loss of two destroyers.

The Germans assert that several other ships were damaged more or less seriously.

The British version in a nutshell is this:

Two German destroyers sunk, two British destroyers lost, one British transport lost.

The German version is this: Eleven outpost steamers sunk, two or three destroyers sunk, one transport sunk, several ships damaged.

"DESTROYERS SAFE."

The Germans specifically assert that all their destroyers returned safely to port.

The British statement does not deny that any other craft were sunk besides those named; and it is possible that the "outpost steamers" were small and unimportant and so were not included in the British statement.

That the raiders surprised the British and sank one transport, getting off without losing any more heavily than the British in war vessels is admitted by London.

Barred by British Censor But Gets the News First

The International News Service, recently barred by the British censor because it told the truth about the war, scored another big beat yesterday on the battle in the English Channel. The Boston AMERICAN, which receives the daily news report of the International News Service, printed this important story far ahead of all rivals.

New Battles Rage on French Fronts

Berlin, via Sayville wireless, Oct. 28.—The allies' drive on Bapaume on the Somme front has been renewed. The German War Office in its official report today announced that another battle has developed on the front. Both British and French launched strong assaults.

Another great battle is raging on the Verdun front. The fighting in that sector it is said has been successful for the Germans. That section of the German report dealing with the western front follows:

Army group of Prince Rupprecht—North of the Somme infantry actions began anew on Friday. Preceded by strong artillery fire the British attacked on the Guedcourt-Lesboeufs line. In the evening the French in the sector of Morval joined the assaults. Our troops repulsed all these attacks with great artillery and machine gun fire. Northeast of Morval, bayonet fighting developed, but there too we were successful.

TEUTONS GO 100 MILES IN RUMANIA

Berlin, Oct. 28.—General von Mackensen's army that invaded Dobrudja has advanced 100 miles into Rumanian territory.

The Austro-German army striking at Rumania from the north has reached the Campolong district, at the edge of the Rumanian plain. Campolong is the main objective of the Turkish and Austro-German forces that have been battling for Rothenthurm Pass.

Dispatches from the front today state that the progress of the German allies in both north and eastern Rumania should now be swifter. Von Falkenhayn's advance had been hindered by strongly fortified barriers in the Transylvania Alps and by heavy snowstorms.

In the lower Carpathians the Russo-Rumanian troops are attempting a counter offensive to prevent the Germans from isolating Rumania from Russia and some progress has been made.

BOYS ON BORDER PLEASED WITH HOME PLANS

By BERT FORD.

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 28.—Judging from communications that are pouring into Camp Cotton, Boston and the outlying cities and towns that contributed companies are planning to give the Eighth and Ninth Regiments a fitting welcome on their return.

Brookline is to hold a public demonstration in honor of the Machine Gun Company of the Ninth, and Worcester, Clinton, Natick, Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill, Lynn, Cambridge and the other places boasting companies will hold parades and receptions.

Selectman Cusick of Brookline telegraphed for permission to parade the Ninth Machine Gun Company and Colonel Edward L. Logan wired back that he would be delighted to show the people of that town "the best machine gun company on the border."

FETE FOR PERRY.

There is talk here that the Boston Lodge of Elks is to welcome the Ninth Regiment. The Lynn companies of the Eighth are to be escorted by two brass bands and by local organizations. The Lynn City Club is to fete Lieutenant-Colonel William H. Perry, acting colonel of the Eighth, at a convenient date and General Swedtser and Colonels Logan and Stover will be among the guests.

Colonel Logan will parade his regiment up Summer street and past City Hall and the State House and out to the East Armory on East Newton street.

Lieutenant-Colonel Perry said today that he will parade his regiment through Boston and out to the Cambridge Armory, where out-of-town companies will be dismissed.

DELAY IN STARTING.

Installation of heating apparatus and repairs on the cars in which the Georgia troops arrived and which will carry the Eighth back to Boston will delay departure of Lieutenant-Colonel Perry's command until Sunday and the Ninth may not get away before Monday.

The cavalry learned today that the five troops from Georgia are billed to arrive at Camp Pershing next Wednesday, which means that within a few days after that the Bay State horsemen will start for home.

General Bell visited the camp in the absence of Major Schmitz' troops and expressed surprise because preparations for going home had not progressd further. This was another indication of an early departure of the troopers.

Private Patrick H. Healey of Stoughton, connected with D Troop, was discharged because of disability.

At a late hour last night the condition of Private Colin Campbell of the Supply Company of the Eighth Regiment, who was run over by a truck yesterday, was reported still critical, but he was resting comfortably. One shoulder was broken and his chest crushed, but the surgeons said he had a good chance for recovery, owing to his constitution. Private Campbell is twenty-one and lives at No. 7 Fainwood circle, Cambridge.

SULLIVAN WILL STAY.

The only other Eighth man who will have to be left behind is Private William H. Sullivan of C Company, Cambridge. Sullivan dove from a bridge at Borderland during the eleven-day hike. The water was only two feet deep. He was paralyzed for days, but when Mrs. Perry and Mrs. Cushing and Chaplain Edwards visited him yesterday at the hospital they found he had regained the use of all parts of his body but one arm and will be able to use that shortly.

Major John J. Barry, on behalf of his "brickbat battalion," last night at mess presented Colonel Logan of the Ninth with a watch fob with a large gold brick dangling from it.

TO RAISE $100,000 TO ENTERTAIN ELKS

A fund of $100,000 will be raised with which to entertain the visiting members of the B. P. O. E. who assemble in Boston in July. At a meeting of Boston Lodge, 10, the sum of $10,000 was voted. Of the $100,000, one-half will be subscribed by merchants of the city and the remaining $40,000 will come from the various lodges in the State.

RAILWAY MEN 880 TO 80 FOR WILSON

Chicago, Oct. 28.—To ascertain the sentiment of the railroad men, John Grunau, former Progressive member of the Legislature and general yardmaster on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad, sent out 1,000 postal cards to the railroad men in the Twenty-first Senatorial District.

Up to the present time 960 have been returned, the vote being as follows: Wilson, 880; Hughes, 80.

MRS. SANGER FIGHTS BIRTH CONTROL LAW

Mrs. Margaret Sanger (at left) and Mrs. Ethel Byrne, the advocates of birth control, who have been seized by the New York police charged with disseminating information about birth control. A few days ago Mrs. Sanger established a birth control clinic in Brooklyn, the first one in the United States. The evidence leading to the arrests was gathered by a woman detective disguised as a washerwoman.

Mrs. Margaret Sanger, the birth control advocate, who visited Boston to aid in the defence of Van Kleek Allison, under jail sentence for distributing literature, is under arrest in New York for running a birth control clinic. Mrs. Sanger says she will fight until the law under which she was arrested and which is similar to the Massachusetts law, is repealed.

Mrs. Sanger has been released under $500 bond. Released with her was her sister apostle, Miss Fanny Mindell.

SISTERS UNDER ARREST.

Mrs. Sanger, Miss Mindell and Mrs. Ethel Byrnes, Mrs. Sanger's sister, were arraigned before Magistrate Voorhees charged with conducting a birth control clinic in Brooklyn. Mrs. Byrnes had been on a hunger strike and had eaten nothing since her arrest.

"I am going to preach birth control, law or no law, until this wretched antique law that I am defying is repealed," declared Mrs. Sanger. "Then the public will realize that this is not a fad, but a civilized propaganda. They cannot stop me by arresting me."

Mrs. Byrne was arrested at her studio and was arraigned before Magistrate Walsh in the New Jersey Avenue Police Court, Brooklyn, charged with violating Section 1,142 of the Penal Code. She was held in $500 bail for further examination on Monday. At that time also the cases against Mrs. Sanger and Miss Fanny Kindell, her assistant, are to come up. They are both in jail and Mrs. Byrne elected to join them.

"I don't care to send out for bail and bother my friends," Mrs. Byrne told Magistrate Walsh. "I will be with friends if I go to jail until Monday and in good company, too."

CHANGES HER MIND.

Later the young woman changed her mind, and was released on bail furnished by a surety company.

"Judicious birth control is not race suicide, but race preservation," said Dr. S. Adolphus Knopf, professor of medicine at the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital, in an address before the American Public Health Association of Cincinnati.

Vigorously urging repeal of federal and State laws prohibiting circulation of information as to birth control, Dr. Knopf pleaded for the establishment of free clinics. He urged that they be directed by regular physicians of high repute, paid by the city or State, who would be competent to give informations as to birth limitations in cases where they deemed such instructions advisable.

He said, in part:

"The average birth rate in three principal cities of Holland was 33.7 per thousand in 1881, when birth control clinics were started. In 1912 it had fallen to 25.2 per thousand. The general death rate, however, had dropped during the same period from 24.2 to 11.1 per thousand."

DOG IS REWARDED BY GOVERNMENT

Washington, Oct. 28.—The faithful work of "Sam," a stray dog, which has assumed the task of guarding bags of mail at Mt. Carmel, Penn., was officially recognized by the Post Office Department. Within a day or so the dog will have locked upon his neck a handsome collar bearing a plate engraved with the words, "United States Mail. Presented to Uncle Sam's faithful friend by Albert S. Burleson, Postmaster-General, Oct. 25, 1916."

"Sam's" self-assigned task is guarding a parcel post wagon while the carrier is delivering. He never misses a trip.

ACCUSING NOTES STIR MOTHERS IN DORCHESTER

Dorchester mothers are indignant over the series of anonymous letters which have been sent to the homes of children in the Meeting House Hill section. The contents of these letters are described as "base, villainous and threatening."

As a result plain clothes men have been detailed to seek the offender by Captain Charles T. Reardon of the Adams street station, and postal authorities have also been notified of the matter.

The letters have been received by both mothers and children. Those to parents purport to contain information regarding the whereabouts of the young people of the household on the evening prior, while those to the children are insinuating.

They have been received principally by families about the vicinity of Vassar and Holliday streets and Geneva avenue. No less than six of these letters, all unsigned, have been received by residents in Holliday street in the past week. All the letters bear the Dorchester post mark.

The police have under suspicion two young men of the district, who are said to have called some of the residences by telephone and used abusive language.

The period of time covered by the complaints is about two months. Several of the women of this district have called upon the police officials and requested some sharp action on the case. They have furnished the officers with some of the letters received.

MORE AMERICANS GOING TO CANADA

Montreal, Que., Oct. 28.—American immigration in western Canada has steadily increased since the outbreak of the war, according to J. S. Dennis, chief of the Department of Natural Resources of the Canadia Pacific Railroad.

A large number of the American settlers become naturalized Canadians, Mr. Dennis said, and take a prominent part in municipal and provincial affairs, but as a whole they are not so deeply concerned as other Canadians in the world war.

EDISON ASSISTS HONEYMOONERS

By International News Service.

Athens, Ga., Oct. 28.—Thomas A. Edison prevented delay in a honeymoon when he invited Dr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Bell to share his private car with him. Dr. Bell, a resident of Charleston, S. C., was maried to Miss Lillian Robinson of Athens, and a late train threatened to upset their plans.

Mr. Edison, traveling on a special train with a number of telephone officials, learned of the couple's predicament and helped them out.

THINK GUNMAN IN SLAVE CASE IS DYING

Providence, Oct. 28.—Thomas De Russi, one of the three gunmen sought for the murder of Cosimo Di Nuccio, the Atwells avenue restaurant keeper, in connection with the police crusade against the white slave system throughout New England, is believed to be either dead or dying in or near Boston.

Information received by the Providence police has led them to believe that De Russi is being secreted by Massachusetts agents of the system, who are waiting a favorable opportunity to smuggle him out of the country. De Russi was badly wounded in the gun battle which resulted in the death of Di Nuccio, and the wild automobile ride to Boston after the murder left him in great pain and practically helpless.

According to physicians who treated De Russi in Boston and in Chelsea, Mass., before the crime became known in these cities, the fugitive's condition was so serious that he could not have continued his flight without a delicate operation having been performed to remove the bullet. One of the physicians declared that any undue exertion on the part of De Russi might prove fatal. Practically all of the hospitals in New England at which De Russi might apply for treatment have been notified of the murder, and a sharp lookout is being maintained for the gunman.

HIDDEN IN CHELSEA.

The last place the police know the wounded man to have been is a house on the Chelsea Boulevard, close to the Chelsea-Revere line. This is one of the houses surrounded by the Chelsea and Providence police following the murder and the house from which Antonio Mauro, who is now held in Chelsea as an accessory to the murder of Di Nuccio, was taken. Blood stains found in the kitchen of that house convinced the police that De Russi was hidden there until a short time before they arrived, and they also believe that the exertion caused by his hasty removal may have resulted in his death.

Valuable information as to the identity and activities of agents of the white slave system is said to have been contained in letters found among the effects of Alfred De Russi in the Hospital street house, in which the death of Di Nuccio is said to have been planned and which was raided by the police after the murder.

Alfred De Russi, who is also known under the name of Antonio Leone, and several other aliases, is another of the three gunmen sought by the police. The letters addressed to him were written by girls in Newark, N. J.; Bridgeport, Ct.; Fitchburg, Mass.; Clinton, Mass., and several other places in New England in which the system is said to have operated extensively. The contents of these letters have not been made public by the police, but it is known they are playing an important part in the investigation of the system.

WANTED FOR ROBBERY.

It became known here today that Thomas and Alfred De Russi and the third alleged gunman, Michele Fontano, are also wanted by the Fitchburg police for a robbery committed in that city previous to the shooting of Di Nuccio. Alfred De Russi was formerly a barber in Clinton, and the Clinton police are tracing his history in the hope of unearthing evidence to connect him with other crimes laid at the door of the white slave system.

FORE RIVER LEADS QUINCY TAX FIGHT

An indignant roar by Quincy taxpayers today was headed by the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, with a veiled threat to move if the tax was not abated.

A written protest from President Joseph W. Powell of the Fore River company to Mayor Gustav B. Bates called His Honor's attention to the yearly wage of the shipworkers, running between two and three millions. The letter added:

"The closing down of such a property would be an incalculable loss which would be felt far more by Quincy than by the owners of the plant, most of the machinery and goodwill of which can be moved to another State whose people have learned to appreciate and foster industry, instead of taxing it to death for the purpose of carrying out political promises."

President Powell said, in closing, that the company would protest the new tax to the utmost.

The reference to "political promises" harks back to Mayor Bates' campaign last Fall, when he declared he would cut the 1915 tax rate of $22 down to $18. He did more than that. The 1916 tax rate is $17.20.

That was splendid—until the bills came out and the new valuations were recognized.

The valuations have been increased. The story is best told by the bare statement that the Quincy total assessed valuation for 1915 was $43,000,000 and now it is $62,000,000. This is an increase of $19,000,000 on $43,000,000, or nearly one-half.

Mayor Bates is a candidate for re-election.

The Fore River Company's valuation has been boosted approximately $2,000,000. President Powell said in his letter that the valuation had been put up about 90 per cent, but in spite of that, the tax bill was 48 per cent higher than last year.

LINER CHICAGO, ON FIRE, IS IN PORT

By International News Service.

New York, Oct. 28.—The French liner Chicago, which was discovered to be afire at sea, has reached Fayal, in the Azores, after a record run.

It is stated that there has been no casualties as a result of the fire. The crew and port reinforcements are fighting the flames.

The Chicago sailed from Bordeaux last Sunday and under normal conditions would have reached this port next Monday. She had 167 second-cabin and ninety-eight steerage passengers aboard, and carried a general cargo of about 2,000 tons.

The Chicago registers 11,127 tons gross and she had a narrow escape from a German submarine.

Today Is the Day! First Public Walk Starts from Common

This is the day of the first walk in the series of six Boston Public Walks.

Through the co-operation of the public this first walk in the series should be a red-letter event for Greater Boston. Let every man and woman join in the walk, which will be a purely informal pleasure walk through one of the prettiest sections of the city.

The walk starts from Boston Common at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The starting point will be the flagpole on the Common, a change from the bandstand, the starting place originally planned.

So let every man and woman who can possibly take the walk be at the flagpole on the Common at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

BE ON TIME!

It is desirable that you get there a short time ahead of the exact hour of starting if you conveniently can.

The main thing is to be there on time.

At 2:30 promptly the leader will start off the first in the series of walks. From the Common the course passes through the Public Garden, along the Charles River Esplanade, under the Boston end of Harvard Bridge, across Beacon street to the Back Bay Fens, through the parkway, to the Children's Museum at Jamaica Plain.

This is the turning point—the Children's Museum.

The return will be made from this point through the Fens to the Boston Art Museum, thence to the Y. M. C. A. building on Huntington avenue.

Here there will be reception rooms thrown open to the women finishing the walk, and other rooms for the men. The course chosen is beautiful, as everyone knows who has ever walked through the Fens, and to those who have motored through it and who may never have taken the walk, it may be said that the walking trip is by far the more pleasurable.

INVITATION TO PUBLIC.

The invitation of the committee in charge—the Boston Public Walks Committee, consisting of representatives of the Boston Y. M. C. A. and the Boston Y. M. C. U. and the AMERICAN—is to the Greater Boston public to take part. As many as possible should enter, for the cause is one that should appeal to all, particularly those who have worked through the week at sedentary vocations and to whom the walk would prove most beneficial.

Take part in the walk yourself and see to it that two or three friends go with you. The aim of the Boston Public Walks is solely to popularize walking, so co-operation by YOU means the success of a splendid movement.

Therefore be sure to take part in the walk this afternoon, and make certain that you are at the starting point at the appointed time.

The committee in charge at a meeting yesterday afternoon completed final arrangements for this afternoon's walk. Owing to the fact that a political rally has been arranged for the bandstand on the Common for this afternoon, the starting point of the walk has been changed from the bandstand to the flagpole on the Common.

PROFESSOR HEBBERT TO LEAD.

Placards will announce the change to those who may go to the bandstand (as was the original plan), and there will be a placard at the flagpole to mark the place for the start.

The walk leader will be Professor Oliver L. Hebbert. The Boston Public Walks officials will be on hand throughout the walk, wearing badges so that the participants may know them in case information is desired at any time.

An automobile will accompany the walkers and take care of coats which the walkers may desire to place in it during the walk. The automobile will be in charge of Armand P. Lamothe of the Y. M. C. A.

At the flagpole the officials will distribute to each walker one of the record cards, which will bear the words: "Boston Public Walks," a number, and a lower half, which will bear the same number and space for the walker's name and address.

This lower half will be taken by the officials upon the completion of the walk, and the upper half will be retained by the walker. The walkers will finish the course at the Y. M. C. A. Here the arrangements are in charge of D. M. Claghorn, social work director of the Y. M. C. A.

For the guidance of those who may go to the bandstand for the start there will be placards directing them to the flagpole as the starting point, the placards reading:

BOSTON PUBLIC WALKS!
Meet at the Flagpole.

At the flagpole there will be a large placard to designate the starting point. This placard will read simply:

BOSTON PUBLIC WALKS.

These arrangements are made so that all participants will meet at the flagpole by 2:30 p. m. this afternoon.

The automobile into which the walkers may place coats and overapparel will also be placarded similarly.

The walk will not in any way become a competitive hike. It will remain throughout an informal pleasure walk. In its course the walkers will probably form a line, and though at no time will there be any attempt at speed, the walkers desiring to proceed even more leisurely will find it easy to follow the course of the rest.

Officials will assist at various points in the line.

Grouping of the walkers will follow naturally as the walk advances, but these groups will form parts of a continuous line.

The important thing is for you to be at the appointed starting place on time—2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Be sure you get a record card, which will be useful in the awarding of the trophy medals of bronze. Each walker covering five out of the series of six walks will receive one of these trophies.

This means that ALL walkers who cover five out of six walks will receive a trophy.

There is no competition in the awarding of these trophies. As stated, they will be given to ALL who complete five out of the series of six walks.

DR. PERIN CO-OPERATES.

Rev. Dr. George L. Perin, president of the Franklin Square House, will co-operate in the plan, and as a result a number of young women from the House will join the walk this afternoon.

Those from the House will meet the line at the Charles River Esplanade under the Boston end of the Harvard Bridge. The young women will wear the House buttons.

Every organization of women and girls in Greater Boston is invited to take part in today's walk, and in all of the rest of the series. The same invitation is extended to the men's organizations.

On the Boston Public Walks Advisory Committee are Dr. Dudley A. Sargent of the Hemenway Gymnasium at Harvard, Dr. John Bapst Blake of the Harvard Medical School, John Ritchie, Jr., of the Appalachian Mountain Club, Frederick M. Brooks, president of the Field and Forest Club, Miss Sybil R. Rolland, one of the best known of Boston's women walk leaders, Dr. A. E. Garland, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., Professor Oliver L. Hebbert of the Y. M. C. U., D. M. Claghorn, social work director of the Y. M. C. A., and E. W. Merz, civics director of the Y. M. C. U.

The Boston Public Walks Committee consists of J. H. White, Frederick McIntosh, Armand P. Lamothe, Harry Swisher, Captain James L. Molloy, C. A. Nicholson, Oscar L. Hallen and the Walks Editor of the AMERICAN.

TEUTONS TO SEIZE ALLIED CAPTAINS

London, Oct. 28.—According to a wireless dispatch from Zurich a German official note announces that in conformity with Article 100 of the German Naval Code, the German naval authorities have decided to regard as prisoners all captains of merchant vessels captured from the British, French, Russians and Italians, alleging that these captains receive instructions from their respective governments to carry on espionage.

SWEDES PROTEST RUSSIAN MINES

Berlin, Oct. 28. (Via Sayville).—The Swedish government has instructed its minister at Petrograd to protest immediately against Russia's intention of placing mines in Swedish territorial waters. This step was made necessary by the recently issued Russian order that mines must be placed in particular sections of the Gulf of Bothnia.

BAY STATE MEN GIVE $10,000 FOR WILSON

Contributors to the number of 41,[illegible] figured in the grand total. The amount of subscriptions, less than $100, is $[illegible]. Subscriptions from $100 to $1,000 form the majority of the list. Some enthusiast handed in one cent.

ELECTION BETS RUN CLOSE TO EVEN MONEY

Reports from the betting centres today showed that presidential election wagers had come to even money between Hughes and Wilson.

On the New York curb bets aggregating $[illegible] were recorded with slight odds for Hughes running from 10 to 9 up to 11 to 9.

The so-called "Waldorf crowd" in New York sent one check of $16,000 to the curb to back Hughes at 10 to 9.

But the Wilson backers declared that even money was predominating and that it was not easy to find Hughes backers who would give any fraction of odds.

TEX RICKARD TRIES.

Tex Rickard, the fight promoter and who is devoting the election period to handling bets, sallied out with twenty-five $1,000 bills, looking for Hughes money that would give any kind of odds. The best he was able to do, Tex said, after considerable scouting, was to place $7,000 of his roll at even money.

The largest individual wager reported from Manhattan is one of $11,000 even on Wilson and being taken by a mining man from Goldfield, Nevada.

There was gossip through Wall street that some Republicans were making what they call "sentiment bets" on Hughes to keep him a favorite. The betting commissioners, like Edward McQuade and others, said they didn't know anything about that; others took the bets as they came.

McALPIN WAGERS.

Colonel James T. Ashley, treasurer of the Hotel McAlpin, said he was holding $8,000, representing a bet of $4,000 at even money on the Presidential race. There is another bet at the McAlpin of $1,500 to $2,000 on Wilson to beat Hughes.

The same man who bet on Wilson—a Western manufacturer—bet a $10 hat that Hughes would carry neither Utah nor Vermont, the two States Taft carried in 1912. Another wager of $1,500 even was reported at the McAlpin.

Tex Rickard says that he has bet more than $[illegible] for clients that Wilson will carry [illegible]. Most of these bets are at 10 to 7 for Hughes, running from that down to even.

25 ARE FORCED OUT BY MORNING FIRE

Twenty-five occupants of the three tenements at No. 31 Kneeland street were forced to the street early today when fire was discovered in the walls of the store at No. 33, occupied by J. Gerakian as a cigarette factory. The rooms filled with smoke and the sleepers were aroused by officers of the Lagrange Street Station and led to the street.

The fire was caused from a defective chimney and Chief McDonough estimated the loss at $50.

WOMEN WIN IN BILLY SUNDAY CAMPAIGN

The Billy Sunday women in the churches known as "key" women, are meeting with great success. They are working in their respective communities and have aroused great interest in the forthcoming campaign. They will hold a meeting in Park Street Church, November 7, at 3 p. m., when reports of individual work will be made.

The "survey" women will meet in the same church November 1, and the meeting of the invitation committee will be November 8, at 10:30 a. m.

Mrs. A. H. Nazarian, head of the luncheon committee, which will meet three days a week at the noon hour during the campaign, has been preparing for the big response which will be given to the Bible meetings following the luncheon, when women and girls will meet together and confer about the religious life.

BUSINESS MEN'S INTEREST.

Boston business men will show their deep interest in the campaign at the meeting in the City Club Monday evening at 6 o'clock, when representative men will give their impressions of Billy Sunday.

This will be the largest meeting of its kind before the opening of the campaign. Vice-President George L. Richards of the general committee has succeeded in arousing many prominent business men in this big gathering.

"Boston business men have shown great interest in this meeting," said the Rev. James A. Walker, Billy Sunday's assistant. "Such interest has seldom been equalled anywhere in the history of the Sunday movement."

The big singing rehearsals will start November 2, at 7:30 p. m., in the tabernacle, when 2,200 singers will practice Billy Sunday hymns and anthems. In choir No. 1 there are 1,000 sopranos, 500 altos, 400 basses and 300 tenors. In choir No. 2 there are the same number of singers, and they will begin their rehearsals November 3.

The service of dedication of the tabernacle will take place November 5, when some of the members of the choir will sing.

One hundred pump-type fire extinguishers have been placed about the tabernacle.

There are now eight carpenters, six laborers and three watchmen working in the tabernacle.

PRAYER MEETING REPORTS.

Prayer meeting reports will be given at the noon meeting Monday in Park Street Church. This will follow the Baptist ministers' prayer meeting in Chipman Hall.

The general convention of the Episcopal Church has warned its clergy not to be carried away with revival meetings of the type now going through a number of cities. In consequence of this there will be no formal acknowledgment of the Sunday evangelistic campaign by Boston Episcopalians.

Conray P. Hall, a Boston merchant, president of the Bible class of the Warren Avenue Baptist Church, who gave Billy Sunday instructions upon the Bible when he was playing ball in Boston, will have a seat of honor at the tabernacle. Billy Sunday was much interested in this Bible class when playing ball in Boston.

Nerves All On Edge?

Just as nerve wear is a cause of kidney weakness, so is kidney trouble a cause of nervousness. Any one who has a combination of backache, nervousness, "blues," headache, dizzy spells, urinary ills and a tired, worn feeling, would do well to try Doan's Kidney Pills. This safe, reliable remedy acts directly on the kidneys. It is recommended by thousands of people who have had relief from just such troubles.

Boston People Testify:

Mrs. Caroline A. Elms, 661 E. Fifth street, says: "My back used to bother me very much. There was a dull, tired ache across my kidneys and it was hard for me to get in a comfortable position at night. After I had used Doan's Kidney Pills a short time, the backache began to disappear. Finally I improved greatly and felt better in every way."

TURN ON YOUR LIGHT, SAYS SUNDAY

This is one of Billy Sunday's telling sermons. It asks many questions and splices the Christian life into serious matters. This sermon has made many persons come to themselves.

By BILLY SUNDAY.

Don't be afraid to use your light. I hate to visit in a home where there is a fussy woman following me around turning down the gas. Let your light burn full and bright. You ought to live so that every one who comes near you will know that you are a Christian.

Does your milkman know that you are a Christian?

Does the man who brings your laundry know that you belong to the church?

Does your newsboy know that you have religion?

If you had to get to heaven upon the testimony of your washerwoman, could you make it?

If your husband had to gain admittance to heaven on the testimony of his stenographer, could he make it?

Does your butcher know that you are on the way to heaven? Some of you buy meat on Saturday night and have the butcher deliver it Sunday morning, just to save a little ice, and then you wonder why he doesn't go to church.

No photographer could make a living taking pictures if he made them look just like you. There are some homes that never hurt the devil's business. You don't have to look like a hedgehog to look pious.

WOMAN WANTS TO KILL ASSAILANT

Birmingham, Ala., Oct. 28.—The woman who was attacked by an unidentified negro at her home in Woodlawn told the police that if the negro is captured she wants him brought to her so she can kill him herself.

"That is," she added, "if members of the posse are not men enough to do so themselves."

A sheriff's posse and a number of armed citizens had no clew to the negro's whereabouts. Bloodhounds lost the trail.

URGES PAY RAISE FOR NEW FIREMEN

Because of the increasing cost of rubber boots and uniforms, Fire Commissioner Grady believes the salary of the firemen in their first six months of service should be raised from $720 a year to $900 a year.

ONLY 15 CASES OF PLAGUE REPORTED

Fifteen cases of infantile paralysis were reported today by the State Board of Health. This shows a decrease, in average, from twenty-three. The cold weather is regarded as being responsible. Seven cases are in Boston.

The total number of cases reported since August 1, is 662 and since January 1, 1675. The highest total in previous years was in 1909 when there were 923 cases. The highest previous month was last September, when there were 623 cases.

These were the cases reported by the State Department of Health:

MIDDLEBORO—William Redlon, No. 30 North street.

DARTMOUTH—Robert Howland, South Dartmouth.

CAMBRIDGE—Two cases.

LYNN—John E. Mara, No. 62 Collins street; Edward Darseny, eight years, No. 454 Western avenue.

FRAMINGHAM—Marion Keep, State Normal School (abortive type.)

TIRED PANHANDLER APPEALS TO POLICE

Henry Allen, sixty-nine years old, who had served a three months' sentence for vagrancy at the State Farm being out but four weeks walked into Station 2 and told Captain Sullivan his troubles. "I'm a professional panhandler, captain," said he, "and business is on the bum. I have 'touched' thirty people in the past twenty-four hours and didn't get a nickle. I was fifteen years in the army, but that doesn't get me anything. I'm tired and want a bed." Allen will spend the Winter at the farm.

ELKS VOTE $10,000 FOR CONVENTION

Boston Lodge of Elks, at a special meeting, took active steps toward preparing for the national convention of the order here in July, when it voted $10,000 toward the fund to help entertain the 200,000 or more Elks and friends who will visit Boston on that occasion.

RECORD OF LODGE SCORED BY 'FITZ'

John F. Fitzgerald, in a statement today, declared that Henry Cabot Lodge, after twenty-four years in the United States Senate cannot point out a single law tending to relieve conditions of the poor which bears his name as the author.

The Fitzgerald statement is a comparison of his own record against that of Lodge.

He says that Lodge "has associated on most friendly terms with Jake Wardwell, the lobbyist," and refers to the "Mulhall scandal" at Washington and "Lodge's defence of the Beet Sugar Trust."

He declares that Lodge caused 200,000 copies of his speech in defence of the Sugar Trust to be printed by the public printer and to placed in envelopes bearing Senator Lodge's personal frank.

AIDED BY SUGAR MEN.

"In the investigation of the Mulhall scandal," Fitzgerald said, "the official records developed the fact that Senator Lodge, just before and at the time he made his speech in the Senate in defence against free sugar, received the personal aid of the Beet Sugar representative, Truman G. Plummer, and his associates in making up charts which accompanied his speech and that Senator Lodge asked same to be printed, which was done.

"Two hundred thousand copies of 'Sugar at a Glance,' which was in defence of the Beet Sugar Trust, were printed by the public printer under a letter of authority from Senator Lodge, were sent to the folding room of the Senate and there inserted in envelopes, which envelopes were furnished by Senator Lodge and which envelopes had his frank printed on them.

"The official records also show that these envelopes were not paid for by the Beet Sugar Trust and the work of inserting them into the envelopes was done in the folding room and paid for like other work by the government, thus saving the Sugar Trust thousands of dollars."

OPPOSE MANY LAWS.

Fitzgerald's statement says that Lodge opposed the establishment of the parcel post, a tax on incomes, election of United States Senators by the people, workmen's compensation, reform of the injunction abuses, the eight-hour bill and the Federal Reserve Act.

A statement by Fitzgerald that Senator Lodge favors restriction of immigration by illiteracy tests, "and compares the Italians, Hungarians, Greeks and Poles to the Chinese," is being printed in several langages for distribution.

"Fitzgerald stands for the people—Lodge stands for the interests—the people, not the interests, elect this year," is the campaign slogan adopted by Fitzgerald.

In a statement setting forth his own record, Fitzgerald is pointing out that, among other things, he secured the first salary increases in twenty-five years for Boston school teachers, policemen, firemen and city laborers, and that he established the first municipal consumptive's hospital in the United States.

He declares for public ownership of public utilities, coal mines and oil fields.

Fitzgerald is campaigning today in the western part of the State. He will speak tonight in Springfield and Holyoke.

Returning from his western county trip he will begin a tour of Bristol County and the Cape District on Monday.

POSTCARD POLL VEERS TO HUGHES

Votes from almost every State in the Union are pouring into the presidential postcard poll being conducted by the Boston AMERICAN and scores of associated papers throughout the country. By Sunday the figures will have reached into the thousands. In the count so far Mr. Wilson seems to be leading in actual votes received, although this lead is not too great to be overtaken by the Republican candidate.

Already the postcard poll indicates that a "swing" to Hughes is under way, especially in New York, which offsets the totals of 9,708 for Wilson and 7,430 for Hughes. In New York city the vote by postcards is almost two to one for Wilson, but with a significant number of the Hughes voters among those who voted four years ago for Wilson.

In tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN, the tabulation, besides indicating the "losses" and "shifts" will include returns from nearly every State in the Union. The 1916 vote to date stands as follows:

	Hughes	Wilson
New York	7,430	9,708
Massachusetts	2,516	1,872
New Hampshire	407	312
Rhode Island	362	207

IDENTIFY BODY OF MURDERED WOMAN

Worcester, Oct. 28.—The body of the murdered woman found hidden in the barn cellar of William J. Hunt of Rutland is today believed by the police to be that of Mrs. John Gialumbauskas, who was employed with her husband by Hunt.

Mrs. Delia Carter, former housekeeper for Hunt, says that Gialumbauskas on the night of July 2 explained to her that his wife had left her employment. She had gone out and had failed to return. Shortly after the man himself went away. The police are searching for Hunt.

HUNT VOTE FRAUD IN CENTRAL WEST

Washington, Oct. 28.—The string of towns along the northern border of Indiana and Illinois, from Fort Wayne to Chicago, is the scene of great activity in a fraud investigation, it was stated by the department of Justice.

South Bend, Fort Wayne, Elkhart, Laporte and Chicago are being scoured by the department's agents for evidence of importation of voters, bribery and all forms of election corruption. Other centers of activity are Indianapolis, Anderson, Muncie and Marion, Ind., Springfield, Peoria and Centralia, Ill., and Cleveland, Toledo, Dayton and Cincinnati, O.

The latter city is alleged to be a hotbed of political fraud and the principal work of the department is being carried forward in that city. Negroes are being slipped up through Tennesse and Kentucky, it is alleged by the department, and spirited over the Ohio River at Cincinnati, where they are distributed.

In Ohio, Indiana and Illinos, the frauds are chiefly confined to the cities now, officials say, but it is reported that the hasty investigation of the government is inducing the managers to send imported voters in the rural districts.

MEXICAN LINE IS CUT BY VILLA

General Alvaro Obregon, the de facto Minister of War, according to special agents, has cut off the ammunition supply of General Jacinto Trevino, General Calles and General Pablo Gonzales, working in the south.

Sounding Voters' Sentiments in 3,000 Communities

We are fortunate in having readers in every State in the Union, and, in fact, in every part of every State, and a few weeks ago, we called upon these friends to act as reporters or special correspondents and tell us how local feeling is running for and against the presidential candidates.

The two questions we asked our readers were: "Which was the most popular candidate in your neighborhood in 1912," and "Which is the most popular in 1916?"

In THE LITERARY DIGEST for October 28th, the feature-article gives an analysis of the replies received.

This "straw vote" is unique in that while it does not necessarily register the individual vote of those who responded, it is inclined more to reflect local feeling in the community in which the correspondent resides.

RECORD HAS WON HIGH PRAISE, SAYS FULLER

Alvan T. Fuller, independent candidate for Congress in the Ninth District against Congressman Roberts, and who has received the indorsement of Republicans, Democrats and former Progressives in the district, as well as throughout the State, has issued a statement in which he calls attention to some of the things he has done in the political field. It is in part as follows:

"Congressman Roberts, in quarter-page newspaper advertisements in every city in the Ninth District, attacks my service in the Legislature, not for my votes on the matters that came before me, but because I was absent on 57 roll calls. The impression conveyed is that I failed to vote on 57 bills; this, however, is far from the truth.

"In order to create this impression, I am charged with not voting on a great many roll calls held on preliminary stages of bills when I did—as a matter of fact—vote on the final decisive roll call. I was the only Progressive in the 1915 Legislature and was in attendance almost every day of the season, except when I was obliged to make two short trips to Detroit on business.

"For my work in the Legislature I have been complimented by the Governor (then Governor Walsh), the speaker of the House and the chairman of the taxation committee. The Governor publicly said: 'No man ever served under the gilded dome of the State House with more fidelity, integrity and painstaking attention to the State's business than Alvan T. Fuller.'

"When the session was over, I turned my check for $1,000 salary and $10 mileage over to the treasurer of the city of Malden in appreciation of the honor my fellow-citizens paid me in sending me to the State House.

"If any man, then, agrees with Congressman Roberts that that record is one to be ashamed of, I hope he will vote for Mr. Roberts, for his record is of an entirely different kind."

Will pay for the chance to heal Catarrh

They announce that any resident of this community can go to almost any drug store and get a complimentary trial can at the expense of the manufacturers. If the druggist has no gratuitous packages, the person may buy a 25 cent tube with the unqualified understanding that if that first tube does not do that person more than a dollar's worth of good, he or she can get their quarter back from either the druggist, or the Kondon Company at Minneapolis. Over 35,000 druggists know Kondon's Catarrhal Jelly is effective, harmless, clean and pleasant to apply—and they know the Kondon people will gladly live up to this offer—"quarter back if not worth a dollar." U-BOAT REPORTS AFFECT STOCK MARKET

Reports that a German submarine had been sighted off Norfolk aggravated the usual Saturday desire to take profits in the New York stock market, and, as a result, prices declined sharply, after displaying great early strength with several new high records.

Having in mind the raid on shipping that followed the apeparance of the U-53 on Saturday October 7, and the subsequent break in the market, a large number of traders did not wait to inquire as to the truth of today's report.

Previous to the report the market was extremely bullish. High records were attained by Bethlehem Steel at 655, Utah Copper at 108¾, Cuban Sugar at 76⅛ and Central Leather at 98.

Coppers particularly were strong in early trading, under the leadership of Utah Copper. Chino registered a high price of 52¾ for the year. Most coppers held some of their gains at the end.

Crimson in Big Game ◆ Meets Cornell Team

Harvard's first big game of the year was played in the Stadium this afternoon with Cornell marking time on the road to another intercollegiate football championship opposing the Crimson. A crowd that was expected to be a record-breaker started early for the Stadium with Harvard "rooters" and sympathizers vastly in the majority, naturally.

Cornell wanted to win badly, not only to keep her championship slate clean, but also to demonstrate fully that her 10-0 victory of last Fall was not in the nature of a fluke.

No team since Haughton has taken charge of Harvard's coaching system has beaten the Crimson twice running and the Harvard men were out today to throw back Cornell from this record.

LOOK FOR HARD BATTLE.

The Cantabrigians, smarting under the charge that they are weaklings, can be relied upon to fight their hardest, and, acting under instructions, went into the fray prepared to get the "jump" on the visitors, if possible.

If Cornell can stand the fast running of Casey with her supposedly weak ends, the dazzling passes, especially those sent forward, which Harvard has been practicing on for the purpose of defeating the Ithacans, she will have the game won hands down.

Cornell's rush line is presumably the strongest. From tackle to tackle it averages around 192 pounds, about two pounds per man heavier than the Harvard line. The Cornell forwards are seasoned, and, except for Tackle Jewett and Centre Carry, played together all last Fall.

Ryerson and Zander, the ends, are playing their first big varsity game. The are light and nothing exceptional for Cornell wings. Harte and C. Coolidge, the Harvard pair, are decidedly superior, and because of this Harvard is expected to send the fast Casey or the stocky Thacher racing around the extremities or cutting in off tackle.

WATCH FOR MANY PASSES.

The forward pass will probably be another much used Harvard objective to score. Harte is especially good and Robinson has thrown several sparkling tosses during the season. The throws are not long ones, but give the player a chance to catch them on one side and beat it for a running gain himself.

Shiverick will probably be the man Harvard's ends and backs will lay for. He is 50 per cent. of the Cornell team: a fast runner, and does the punting, having outkicked Mahan last fall, though favored by a strong wind.

Shiverick should be good at least for one or two drop kicks, if his team cannot gain by rushing the ball. Capt. Mueller is the star line plunger of the Cornellians.

Harvard's line is considerably weakened through injuries and if the Crimson comes through with flying colors it will indeed be a great victory. Clark, the big guard, and Taylor and Caner, tackles, all regulars, are forced to watch proceedings from the "dugout," as they are suffering from injuries.

Two Chicago Boys in Punting Clash

Pals will be kicking against one another in the Harvard-Cornell game. Ralph Horween, the Crimson's husky back, has been chosen to do Harvard's punting. To uphold the Cornell end of the argument, Dr. Al Sharpe has elected Fred Shiverick, his 185-pound quarterback.

Both boys are from Chicago and last Summer spent considerable of their time together practicing kicking in Chicago; in fact, much of Horween's recent improvement in booting might possibly be laid to the tips given him by his Cornell chum, for Shiverick last year was considered one of the finest punters in football.

Horween is no "slouch" when it comes to punting, and he has been averaging 45 and 50 yards all along in the Stadium. Shiverick can do somewhat better. He has a mark of eighty-five yards, made in practice. In addition to being Cornell's fastest back, Shiverick is the team's best drop-kicker. His best shot at the goal posts has been from the 47-yard line.

Illinois boys, especially those whose homes are in Chicago, abound on the Cornell team. In addition to Shiverick, there is F. N. Gillies, left tackle; R. J. Zander, right end, and J. C. Carry, substitute centre. Captain Mueller's home is in Decatur, Ill., and Taylor, a substitute linesman, comes from Hubbardswood, the same State.

COLGATE PICKED TO WIN.

Springfield, Oct. 28.—Springfield Y. M. C. A. College and Colgate were greeted by a big crowd of "rooters" when they lined up in their annual game here today. The home warriors were confident of giving a good account of themselves, though the husky visitors were favored to win.

New York, Oct. 28.—Columbia's big drive was subjected to a severe test on South Field today against Williams College.

Columbia came to New York for the first time since 1904, before football was abolished at Morningside Heights. Union, Columbia's conqueror last week, was trounced by the Berkshire team, and Rensselaer was also defeated, whereas Cornell and Brown have triumphed over Williams by large scores.

"Buddy" Wilber, Columbia's right tackle and star drop-kicker, has been in poor condition since the Union encounter, and his place on the rush line was taken by Herbert Volmer, the swimming champion.

Joe Brown started at fullback, and his regular position at centre was filled by Goldberg.

CASEY IS LAD TO WATCH

Harvard Always Has an Irishman to Dread, Says Expert, and Today It's Natick Eddie II.

By W. S. FARNSWORTH.

Harvard has no Eddie Mahan or Charley Brickley to shoot against the Cornell defence in the Stadium at Cambridge this afternoon. But they have a fighting Irishman, Eddie Casey, upon whom they are depending for victory.

Harvard has had many great Irish backs in recent years. First there was Hurley, then Brickley and Mahan. This Fall it is Casey, a demon line plunger and a fleet-footed end skirter, the Crimson is banking on to uphold the honor of the Irish race—and Harvard.

But Harvard, even with Casey in the lineup, does not appear any too confident of victory. The undergraduates this morning are getting odds of 10 to 8 from Cornell foes.

If Harvard were to go to the struggle with their full strength, the betting undoubtedly would be at evens.

But the Crimson will have both its regular tackles sitting in the crippled section on the side lines. Caner is out with a badly bruised leg, while Taylor, the other first-string tackle, has a sprained shoulder.

Then, in the back field, the Crimson has two regulars out, Flower and Bond, both of whom are injured.

Cornell, to the writer, looks the stronger team, for it has more experienced players. Then the season's schedule has shown Harvard to have a weak line and Cornell is sure to make its big attack there.

The annual Somerville High-Waltham High game, one of the big contests on the schoolboy football calendar, was fought at Waltham. This game goes a long way in deciding the Greater Boston Scholastic Championship, as the contestants are considered two of the best teams of the year.

Somerville was the favorite to win. Waltham lost a week ago to Brookline by a safety and goal from the field, so another defeat will practically put the Watch City athletes out of any claim for the championship. However, a triumph for the Fradd aggregation will wipe out the Brookline defeat and put the eleven in the running.

Both squads were given strenuous practice during the week for the game. It was the banner school attraction of the day and brought out a large crowd.

Jack Dillon Gets in a New Jam

Chicago, Oct. 28.—The Jack Dillon-Mike Gibbons bout, which is scheduled for November 17 at St. Paul, is doing another of its on-again, off-again stunts.

This time it is the New York Boxing Commission which is responsible. It appears that Dillon signed to meet Al McCoy in Brooklyn next week. It also appears that he put up a $1,000 forfeit guaranteeing not to engage in any bout for two weeks before the big bout.

The New York Commission now threatens to bar him unless he battles McCoy. The St. Louis promoters say Dillon will lose that $1,000 if he does. Jack does not known which way to jump.

REAL THING SOON FOR MR. LES DARCY

New York, Oct. 28.—The European war will soon claim another fighter. Word was received here today that Les Darcy, Australian middleweight champion, will soon enlist. He has been forced to promise that after he has three more ring bouts he will join the army.

The battle with George Chip of Newcastle, Pa., was the first of three battles. Jimmy Clabby may be his opponent in another battle and the promoters are considering bringing on another American for the third encounter.

SPARKS NOT IN GAME FOR YOST'S MACHINE

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 28.—Michigan started today's contest against Syracuse without the services of Sparks, its crack quarterback. Zeiger was at the helm.

Michigan coaches and players were confident of wiping out last year's 14-7 defeat.

SIX INCHES APART IN 100-YARD DASH FINAL

Harvard and Technology held a practice meet on Tech Field. Close finishes featured many of the events. In the 100-yard dash six men in the final heat finished inches apart. Noble of Harvard and Russert of Tech were the star men for their respective colleges.

Expert Compares Rival College Elevens Meeting in Big Battles on the Football Gridiron Today

By INNIS BROWN.

The real big guns of football the country over got into action today and the fire was aimed in most cases at rivals of equal rank. Both East and West are topnotchers meeting topnotchers, and the results of today's clashes will go a long way toward deciding titles and standings.

Probably the most important clash in the East is the Harvard-Cornell conflict at Cambridge. Though beaten by Tufts, Harvard has already shown a powerful eleven. None will deny that Coach Al Sharp has a powerful outfit at Ithaca.

The Ithacans have visions of repeating on the Eastern championship and appreciated fully the proposition before them in today's game. This contest should prove an exciting, hair-raising battle from whistle to whistle, with neither team carrying any material edge in advance.

YALE HAS HARD FIGHT.

Yale will tackle a tough customer in Washington and Jefferson. The Pennsylvania collegians have been using the Elis rather roughly for the past two or three years and there was full and sufficient incentive for the Bulldog to crash into the frolic today with everything in the shop tuned for service. Yale should win, but there is a real battle ahead of Coach Jones's eleven.

Princeton and Dartmouth are due for considerable of a tussle at Princeton. The fact that Georgetown walloped the Green eleven last Saturday may incline some to believe that the Hanover squad is a bit below par this year.

But none should make the mistake of underrating the Georgetown outfit. No doubt Princeton will be able to pull out a victory over the Green eleven, but Rush's eleven is in for no holiday program.

PENN STAR INJURED.

Ranking well along with the above comes the Penn-Pittsburgh melee at Pittsburgh. Consternation was thrown into the camp of the Quakers by the disabling of Howard Berry. Injuries have put Berry out, and with him out of the way the Panthers should find the going decidedly easier and look certain to score a victory.

The most notable intersectional struggle of the day will be the meeting between Syracuse and Michigan at Ann Arbor. The Orange won over Yost's men last season, but are apt to strike a snag in today's engagement. Tufts, which jumped into prominence by defeating Harvard a few weeks since, is due to do battle in the West with Indiana.

CONCORD SCENE OF BIG SCHOOL BATTLE

A private school game of big local interest was the tussle between Country Day and Middlesex at Concord today. They are staunch rivals and were looked to furnish an interesting game. The lineup:

HENIGAN TO START IN NEW YORK RUN

New York, Oct. 28.—Thirteen long-distance runners compete here today in the 10-mile race for the national A. A. U. championship title. Hannes Kolehmainen, title holder, is going to run unattached, having retired from the Irish-American A. C.

W. J. Kennedy, formerly of Chicago, also will run unattached, and with the exception of James Henigan of the Dorchester club, Boston, all the other runners will represent the clubs in the metropolitan district.

Willie Kyronen, Millrose A. A., will go to the post a strong favorite. In the seven-mile walk for the national championship William Plant, Long Island A. C., and Richard Reimer, New York A. C., are liked the best.

BASKETBALL NOTES

THE CAMBRIDGE A. A. has re-organized and will put an all-star quintet on the floor. Among its foremost players are Lee MacDonald and "Dave" Meade, who once cavorted for the Institutes of Cambridge, and Freeman, Wesley and Mitchell. The team is out with a deal to Auburn, Bangor and Springvale, Me., and Franklin and Laconia, N. H. Address James R. Dailey, No. 18 Houghton st., Somerville.

HOLY TRINITY A. A. teams desire to arrange games with any fast amateur fives at 125 and 115 pounds, respectively; Monday night at home, and Saturday night away from home. Address Manager Joe Heden, No. 107 Center st., Dorchester, or telephone 6878-W Dor., between 6 and 7.

THE PALMERS seek games with all 115-120 pound teams in or around Boston. Address Thomas Glynn, No. 445 Dudley street, Roxbury.

HARTFORDS of the West End play with 70-80 pound teams. Address William Glick, No. 46 Lowell street, Boston.

Tufts Battling Indiana ◆ Bratt Plays at Quarter

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 28.—Indianapolis is football mad as a result of today's big intersectional game between the strong Tufts eleven of Medford, Mass., and Indiana University.

A special train brought in 2,000 students from the Bloomington school, while every incoming train is attracting alumni from neighboring cities.

The weather is bright and a record-breaking crowd is assured. Tufts was a strong favorite to win, the local betting board making them an even money shot to win by a twenty-point margin.

Even money that Indiana fails to score a touchdown against the conquerors of Harvard was also freely offered with few takers. In spite of these odds, however, the report came from the Indiana camp as soon as Coach Stiehm arrived with his squad that the Crimson practiced every night during the week against the "freak" formations as used by Tufts, and is in fine shape to give the Easterners a hard battle.

Another encouraging feature for the Indiana "rooters" is that the Bloomington men always put up their best game in Indianapolis. Last year, when supposedly outclassed by the strong Washington and Lee eleven, in their game here, they held that institution to a tie. It is with the determination of holding down the score that Coach Stiehm's men will enter the fray.

Coach Whelan of the visitors stated that his team was physically fit for the battle, but would be somewhat handicapped as a result of Drummey, his star quarterback, being on the hospital list. Bratt was seen in the pivot position.

CADETS USE SUBS IN VILLA NOVA CLASH

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 28.—The Army eleven feared the toe of McGuckin, Villa Nova's star drop kicker, in today's game, and although the Soldiers expected to win by a comfortable margin, they were not so sure of getting through with a clean slate.

Ford was the only regular in at the kickoff, although the coaches planned to use many varsity men during some stage of the melee.

Brown Warriors Battle Rutgers

Providence, Oct. 28.—The Brown University eleven and Foster Sanford's famed Rutgers machine had a bright, clear day for their battle and the "rooters" began arriving early at Andrews Field.

Coach Edward Robinson, despite numerous injuries to some of his stars, was expected to offer a choice assortment of plays which will keep the Jerseyites guessing. Brown already this season has run up a total of 149 points, and has yet to be scored upon.

Rutgers offers everything that "debrutalized football" has produced, baffling forward passes, powerful mass plays, dashes off end and through tackle and the last football wrinkle, Sanford's own device, the multiple kick for goal.

YALE FRESHMEN ON WITH PENNSY CUBS

New Haven, Oct. 28.—The Yale freshmen played the Pennsylvania yearlings today for the first time in four years. The eleven is the fastest cub team Yale has had in years and includes a number of preparatory school stars. Captain Kempton is probably the most versatile quarterback on any freshman eleven this year. Yale's opening lineup:

Hendrickson, l.e.; Lewis, l.t.; Leidenburg, l.g.; Walters, c.; Burnham, r.g.; Hamill, r.t.; Rockwell, r.e.; Kempton, q.b.; Henger, l.h.b.; Walthew, r.h.b.; Campbell, f.b.

Big Ban Admits He's Up in Air

Chicago, Oct. 28.—President B. B. Johnson of the American League states he is surprised at the attack on him by President Tener of the National League.

"I cannot understand what Tener means by an interview attributed to me in Milwaukee," said Johnson. "I have not been in Milwaukee lately, nor have I given out any statement.

"What I thought of the McGraw incident I gave out in the East before the World's Series. President Tener knows exactly what I think of it, but when he says that what I say is buncombe, I cannot answer. That stops me."

Drivers Off in 100-Mile Sprint

New York, Oct. 28.—All is in readiness for the automobile race at Sheepshead Bay Speedway this afternoon, with the Harkness trophy as the big attraction.

Inasmuch as the distance is only 100 miles, experts assert there is every probability of breaking all records up to the century mark.

The coveted place of pole in the front rank fell to James L. Benedict, who drives a car of the same name and who hails from Katonah, N. Y.

The positions drawn by the other drivers, in order, follow:

Klein, Meyer, Lewis, McBride, Resta, Devlin, Galvin, Gish, Hughes, Milton, Devore, Devine, Henderson, Aitken, Buzane, Wilcox, Le Cain, Vail, Rickenbacher, Muller, Watson, De Palma, Burt, Henning, Adams and Lentz.

Anderson is Put Out in a Jiffy

Eau Claire, Wis., Oct. 28.—Whatever championship aspirations Andre Anderson, the Chicago heavyweight, had went glimmering in the middle of the first round of a scheduled ten-round bout with Fred Fulton, challenger of Jess Willard.

The Minnesota heavyweight, after pummeling the Chicagoan around the ring, planted a right cross to the jaw that put him to sleep.

After Anderson was counted out Fulton strode across the ring and lifted his prostrate opponent into a chair, where he finally revived and staggered with assistance to the dressing room.

TWO QUICK KAYOS IN NEW YORK RING

New York, Oct. 28.—Much to the surprise of the packed house, "Irish Patsy" Cline stopped Allie Nack, former amateur featherweight champion, in the first round, flooring him seven times before the referee mercifully called a halt on the slaughter.

In the other scheduled ten-round bout John Lester Johnson, a negro, hurled a left and right to the jaw of Jim Savage and the Orange, N. J., Adonis went off to sleep without even as much as a "good night" to the assemblage.

HARVARD AND TECH HARRIERS IN CLASH

This afternoon at 3 o'clock the Harvard and Tech cross-country teams will meet for their first competitive race of the season over the Belmont course. The meet will be a time trial for the Harvard harriers, for Coach Shrubb is desirous of getting a line on the men he will use in the Harvard-Cornell race at Ithaca November 4.

JACQUES AT FULL FOR ELI

YALE'S OPENING LINEUP.

New Haven, Ct., Oct. 28.—Today's Yale-Washington & Jefferson game was given a military flavor by the presence of the Second Connecticut Regiment, which was welcomed home by the citizens of New Haven with a mammoth parade in the morning and which afterward attended the game in full army regalia.

The game called out the biggest crowd of the season. The visitors have already accomplished against Yale what no rival college, except Harvard, has been able to perform, viz, prevented the Blue from winning over them for three seasons. They gained a tie three years ago, won, 16-7, in 1914 and went over, 13-7, last Fall.

Betting favored Yale at odds of five to three, largely because of the light weight of the Washington & Jefferson rushline. Yale was expected to uncover a smashing attack of straight football against the Pennsylvanians and to crush the light line by the line-ramming of Bingham, Le Gore and Braden. The latter started his first game in a Yale uniform.

Fullback Jim Braden, Coach Jones' first choice for fullback duty today, sprained a tendon in his thigh just as yesterday's practice was coming to a close. He is lost to the eleven for at least a week; in fact, Jones fears that his great ground-gainer will be unable to get into the Colgate contest next Saturday.

With Braden enumerated among the cripples, Jacques, though his condition could be much better, started the game at fullback.

Because of the continued absence of Callahan, Fullback Rex Hutchinson was again used at centre. It was stated today that Callahan would be unable to play for two or three weeks longer and that Hutchinson will in all probability prove the final selection for the position.

Captain Black and Galt, the two guards, played today's game wearing heavy bandages, because of recent surgical operations.

Green on with Tigers Duhamel at Fullback

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 28.—Into the usually placid life of this community there came two great disturbances this morning. First and foremost was the Dartmouth football squad, thirty strong, led by Frank Cavanaugh. In their wake came Miss Elizabeth something or other, who is here to grab votes right away from the Woodrow Wilson cohorts in this land.

As is well known, Woodrow at one time or another studied here, and still later he presidented the Tigers. Subsequently he grabbed off the job of Governor and still later landed the presidency of the United States. The aforesaid Miss Elizabeth something or other was haranguing just as we arrived here and telling the folks why Woodrow isn't fit to occupy the chair. She remarked that a guy who never earned more than $3,000 a year wasn't entitled to administer some odd billions in a like period.

For Coach Frank Cavanaugh, Captain Gerrish and the other Dartmouthites, Woodrow can run for Sweeney. What they most desire this fine day is a win over the Tigers. They heard the aforesaid Miss Elizabeth something or other spiel for a few minutes and finally departed, bent on putting a dent in Woodrow's old pals here in Jungleland. The denting business is of infinitly more importance to them than the election of either Woodie or Charlie.

Brown isn't on Dartmouth's schedule, but Princeton is. Consequently, being desirous of beating anything savoring of Princeton, Cavanaugh and the Green gang agreed with Lizzie to a greater or less extent. However, she said nothing regarding the game this afternoon, and accordingly we pass her up here and now.

CAVANAUGH IS CONFIDENT.

The Big Green squad wended its way into this plot of land about 11 a. m. Last night they spent glimpsing the white lights of Broadway. Their glimpses, however, were confined to those which one snatches when a curtain isn't tightly drawn and when a gum "ad" or other flashes into your room.

"Some folks think," said Cavanaugh, "that Princeton has a canter in today's game. It all may be, and then again it may not be. Our team wasn't very good a week ago, but today it's a far different aggregation. The boys have tasted defeat and are not content with it. They long for the big end, and only the big end will satisfy them.

"Now, you know me. I don't say we are going to win with any degree of ease. I feel that Dartmouth will triumph, but I also feel that before we do so it will be necessary for us to play the best football of our career. As yet we haven't been able to figure just what happened at Haverhill last Saturday. The team had been good up to that time, but in it they were bad.

"They kicked opportunities left and right. Today it will be different. I know that the Dartmouth spirit prevails, and that before the team is defeated it will have fought to the last ditch. Today we are in much better shape than we were a week ago. Of course, with Merrill out of the line we have somewhat of a hole. However, I figure that the gap has been plugged and I feel that victory is coming our way."

OUT TO FIGHT HARD.

Cavanaugh's ideas are the ideas of the entire squad. It cannot be rated as over confidence, for if I am any judge of human nature this Dartmouth team is not at all overconfident. They appreciate that they face a stiff foe. They expect to win, but don't figure the triumph is coming their way easily.

In the wake of the team there came a special train from Hanover bearing considerably more than 400 students. They are here to root for the Big Green. To augment them there have come sundry hundreds, yes, thousands of graduates. Each and every one of them is plumb full of the Dartmouth spirit.

The Palmer Stadium can accommodate almost as many folks as that mammouth concrete horseshoe out in Brighton, and if the incoming crowds be any criterion it is going to hold a capacity bunch today. Dartmouth's hundreds of graduates from New York and vicinity are already on hand. Trains from Philadelphia and points in that direction are bringing more to town.

This morning we learned that "Speedy" Rush doesn't feel at all certain of winning; in fact, he actually dreads the Big Green, and this despite the fact he saw them perform a week ago at Haverhill. I got to hand myself something, for I know now that "Speedy" and I are agreed. I know that he feels sure Dartmouth wasn't playing up to its form a week ago.

WILL BE AN AWAKENING.

He feels, and so do I, that the Big Green can tackle much better, and, furthermore, that they will not fumble so often in today's game. "Speedy" remarked to the writer this morning that he prayed for a Dartmouth win in the Georgetown game. He feels that if they had won they would have been much easier for his team today. However, they didn't win, and Rush knows that Cavanaugh possesses an ability to instill fight; he fears Cavanaugh and his charges.

Collectively, the two teams are about even. Dartmouth's backfield, in our opinion, lays way over Princeton's and this is said despite the fact we appreciate that Driggs is some punter and Tibbott some drop-kicker.

From all accounts Tufts had no bother with the Princeton line. North Carolina players told me that Harvard's line was better than Princeton's.

TO TRY TRICK PLAYS.

Competent New York critics told me last night that the Tiger tackles are fully as fast as the ends. If that be the case, Dartmouth has little to worry about. Most of Dartmouth's plays heretofore have been directed at tackle. However, Cavanaugh has not as yet uncovered his stellar numbers. It may be that he does today. If that be the case, the Tigers will have something to worry about.

While Sid Holbrook is along with the team, in my opinion Jackson Cannell will start the game at quarter. Cavanaugh appreciates that Cannell hasn't had much major league experience. However, he does not fear that fact. He thinks the former Everett High lad will deliver.

Duhamel will be at fullback and Dartmouth's team will be at its best except for the absence of Merrill. The latter is here, but won't play. Youngstown will fill his post at guard.

Dartmouth is confident of victory. So, too, is Miss Elizabeth something or other, who is without the gates "spieling" for Charles Evans Hughes. As we remarked before, why worry about Woodie and Charley? The game is about to start and our interest centres on it.

EXPECTS A STIFF FIGHT

Whichever Eleven Gets the "Break" Will Win Today's Big Game, States Expert Hardwick.

By H. R. HARDWICK.
Harvard Coach and Former Star Halfback.

Today Harvard plays her first big game of the year. Cornell is her opponent. Last year Cornell won. Much was written in the newspapers about Cornell being lucky to strike Harvard on her one poor day.

This may or may not be true, but the fact remains that Cornell resents these assertions and is here to prove them false. Harvard is equally keen to win, as no team has beaten her two years running since Haughton took charge.

Furthermore, it is a very critical period in the development of the Harvard team. At the start of the season Harvard was recognizedly weak, in that few veterans were in the squad. It was composed largely of "green" and inexperienced material. Their progress was necessarily slow, but it was sure.

CREDIT HAS BEEN LACKING.

Defeat at the hands of the strong Tufts team tended to emphasize this early weakness and the result is that Harvard is not given the credit her team merits. This victory would mean much to them.

It would dispel this belief in her weakness and it would produce that confidence so essential for the Princeton and Yale games.

Cornell is strong. She has many veterans back. She is heavier and more experienced than Harvard, but she is not over confident. These factors go to bring the spirit of today's game to a high pitch and hard, rugged football will be inevitable.

Cornell will present a heavy rushing game, well supported by Shiverick's kicking. The fact that their rushline outweighs Harvard's should prove a big aid to this type of game.

Shiverick has earned a wide reputation both as a dropkicker and punter, and his ability along these departments have proved to be important factors in her past games.

He will need to kick his best, however, if he is to outdo Horween of Harvard, as the latter has shown rapid improvement.

EXPECTS A CLOSE GAME.

In my opinion, the game will be exceedingly close and will be won on a "break." Although Mueller, Hoffman and Benedict are strong running backs, I do not believe that they can gain ground consistently through the Harvard defence and the game will hinge on a fumble, short kick or intercepted pass.

Undoubtedly Harvard has developed faster than the general public appreciate. She is capable of playing good enough football to more than hold her own.

This must be considered, however, that this is the first big game for the majority of her players and little actual knowledge of what they can do under stress has been obtained.

But from personal observation, I am firmly convinced that the team is composed of a type of men who stand the test under fire and that they will play up to their limit.

They appreciate that it is their opportunity to make good and are in the right mental frame to take advantage of it.

TIGER FRESHMEN IN COMBAT AT EXETER

Exeter, N. H., Oct. 28.—The Exeter Academy team that faced the Princeton freshmen here today was vastly different from the one that played against the Yale cubs last Saturday. Coach Vaughn has had the assistance of Pat Kelly, captain of the victorious 1913 eleven, in the week's practice work.

Hardwick's Tidy Talk Bids Students Be Loyal

There is to be no requiem in Harvard football this afternoon if Coach Huntington R. Hardwick, the AMERICAN'S football expert and former Crimson star has anything to say about it.

"Put away your steamer rug, your bunch of flowers and your band of crepe, and get out and fight," shouted the inimitable "Tacks" as he finished his speech at the first mass meeting the undergraduate body at Harvard has held this year.

The living room of the Harvard Union was filled to overflowing and after songs and cheers had been practised Hardwick delivered his speech. He said in part:

The Harvard coaches have had a very difficult task to face this season—far more so than in past years. The squad of players started with no Trumbull, Bradlee, Brickley or Mahan, and, furthermore, had very few veterans. The task has been to take green and inexperienced material and produce a combination that could compare favorably with the past few years.

RIVALS AT THEIR BEST.

A fair team does not suffice; it must be a good team, as once we get an appetite for turkey, hash no longer satisfies. Added to this task is the fact that both Princeton and Yale are in the strongest condition in years. Excellent experienced material and more efficient coaching have raised their football to a high plane. We must attain those heights despite any obstacles.

And the first step is blocked by Cornell. Cornell beat us last year. Much was said in the newspapers by so-called experts that Cornell was lucky to catch us on our bad day. This may or may not be true, but the fact remains that Cornell resented those statements and they are here this year to prove them false. Cornell wants our scalp and wants it badly.

This is a critical period in the team's development and no stone should be left unturned. There are two factors which are all important to a victory, one is the team and the other is you.

BOSTON FANS LAUDED.

Discard football for a moment and consider baseball. Boston has held the chief roll in that game for some few years. They have never lost a World's Series. Do you ascribe it all to better material and better management? In part yes, but remember a winning manager is always a "Miracle Man." Half of Boston's baseball success is due to the fact that Boston is recognizedly the best baseball town in the country. The fans back their teams to the limit. Furthermore, they are essentially fair and merit on either side is appreciated and commended. They seldom "pan a home player," except the occasional "bug" who pans everything in baseball, including the squareness and honesty of the game.

This backing and confidence by loyal supporters is responsible for continued Boston victories to a greater extent than it is given credit for. That's what we want in football. Give your team all your confidence and support and the task is far easier for them. If they are in a hole and Jones or Smith, or even Brown, drops back to kick, or run or whatever the play may be, get rid of that "I wonder if the big boob has got it in him" idea.

Expect a splendid performance and you'll get it. This team possesses the ability to play exceptional football; help them. I don't mean that you are all to cheer your throats hoarse, or keep up a steady howl. Cheer hard when called upon by the cheer-leaders, but everlastingly "hunch" on every play.

"EXPERTS" WILL BE AROUND.

We all follow the newspapers and believe that Harvard has an exceptionally weak team. Cornell has a marvel, Princeton and Yale are unbeatable. It also sounds like a funeral oration for Harvard. We did start the season without experience, as I mentioned at first, but this team has come fast, faster than you appreciate, and faster than these so-called newspaper experts know.

You have a fine team representing you and it's time you woke up to the fact. They haven't had half the credit they deserve. You expect them to show all kinds of fight and "guts." They will. You take my word for that. They are scrappers every one.

Now, how about yourselves? You expect "guts" of them. Well, they expect "guts" of you. They will fight on the field. You have got to fight in the stands. You have a team capable of holding up your end. Well, show them you can hold up yours. Make them feel it every minute.

MELROSE CALLS ON NIFTY REVERE TEAM

Revere High entertained Melrose High today. The contest was expected to give a line on how Melrose is going to fare in the Surburban League this year. Revere is no easy member for any of the big school teams to tackle. It is well coached and has prospered this season to date. The lineup:

MALDEN EXPECTS TO CRUSH NATICK HIGH

Malden High took on Natick High at Malden today. The game was thought to be an easy one for Malden, as Natick is considered one of the weak members of the Suburban League. The lineup:

B. C. HIGH HAS SNAP WITH S. BOSTON BOYS

Boston College High defeated South Boston High at Fenway Park, 42-0. Boston College High outplayed South Boston from the start and, after the first few minutes of play, Coach McCabe put second and third string men in at all positions. Hancock, Blake and Gildea scored practically at will.

Tom Kennedy, South Boston's spirited little left halfback, broke his ankle in a scrimmage and was removed to City Hospital.

Hartford, Ct., Oct. 28.—Charley Brickley's Boston College eleven battled with Trinity here today. Trinity had not fully recovered from the effect of the West Point game last week, and Boston College was expected to have the better of the argument.

Coach Brickley, however, stated in advance of the battle that he was prepared for a stiff contest.

The Maroon and Gold eleven and subs, to the number of twenty-seven, arrived in Hartford this morning. All of Brickley's star players, with the exception of varsity tackle Tierney and McKenna of the backfield, were available for the game.

Fitzpatrick, Brickley's kicking wonder, was back at his regular berth at left half. The Meriden star is in fighting trim and is expected to do a good share of the point-getting for Boston College.

Fullback Lowney, Boston College's star offensive man, was fully recovered from the effects of the Tufts clash, and was depended upon to do the bulk of the line plunging for the Maroon and Gold. Callaghan started the game at centre, but as he was limping it was expected Brickley would be as sparing as possible with him.

Trowbridge and Curly were at the ends, with Dee at quarter. McCarthy, Horrigan and Captain Dullea, all of whom played a steady game against Tufts, were in the Boston College line. "Tubber" Collins entered the game in fighting condition and sans bandages.

Fitzgerald's punting is second only to Fitzpatrick's, while his backfield work all around is of A1 calibre.

A good-sized delegation of Maroon and Gold "rooters" accompanied the team to Hartford.

SWITCHES MAR BIFF SHOW

Only One Bout at C. A. C. Comes Off as Advertised—Fight Fans Pack West End Resort.

The advertised "all-star" boxing show at the Commercial A. C. failed to come off; in fact only one of the four carded set-tos was rendered. But as the show had been well drummed up, and, on paper, promised to be productive of some stellar sport, a veritable mob turned out.

The club's headquarters, on the fourth floor of the building at No. 7 Green street, West End, were packed to suffocation. Late comers, those not holding seat coupons, were sold "standing room." The aisles were jammed with "members" packed all around the hall, standing up against the wall three and four deep.

Charley Sheppard of New York was not even in the city for his carded ten-round fight with Johnny Donovan of South Boston. The club stated it had sent him his transportation and that he had run out on them.

George Brooks of Cambridge was substituted for Sheppard. Donovan used him as a chopping-block and in the fourth round Referee Jack Sheehan wisely brought the uneven battle to a halt.

Bill Casey, South Boston welterweight, was reported to be on the sick list, and Pat McCarthy, a former star of the amateurs, subbed for him against Jack Travers. The bout was a snap, McCarthy chucking it up in the second round.

The windup went on as advertised. It was between Tony Vatlan of Brighton and Benny Valgar of New York, two little fellows who attained national honors when boxing as amateurs.

They put up a red-hot ten-round bout. Valgar landed an occasional hard punch, but Vatlan did the bulk of the superior milling. The Brighton boy was entitled to the verdict, and Sheehan passed it along to him.

In the curtain-raiser, another set-to that was switched about, Young Amos stopped Young Cross in the third round. An extra scrap was furnished by "Kid" Green of Memphis and Johnny Morris of Montreal, and their six-round efforts wasn't half bad.

Harry Carlson and Mel Coogan will top next week's card, it was announced.

EPISODE NO. 13

"The Ringer"

SIXTH INSTALMENT

By Beatrice Fairfax

(Novelized from the scenario of Basil Dickey and produced in motion pictures by Wharton, Inc., Studios for the International Film Service.)

DOWN, down, went the odds against Black Joe. At last they stood twenty to one, and then Wilder descended from his stand with a roll of money in his hand and a smile of utter complacency on his face.

Smooth and white lay the track, glinting softly in the Autumn sunshine. There was the first tang of crisp October in the air, though the calendar registered that the month was September.

Tense excitement surged through the stands, and as the horses were led out the same ripple and thrill which were moving the humans caused the animals to curvet and prance.

Whatever thrill there is from the joy of seeing perfect machines whirl around the track to the accompanying thud of motors, it can never reach the heart as the sight of smooth-coated thoroughbreds, prancing and dancing in their eagerness to be off, must do.

As Jimmy Barton approached the grandstand he felt himself fairly tingling with the electrical fluid of impatience to be off, which animated the horses and caused the stands to move with an ebb and flow like that of the surging sea.

All the fair had gone to watch the free-for-all. But in the freaks' tent he found the disconsolate members of that "side show" still wearily on parade.

Cutie Brown was sitting in state on her platform. And as Jimmy peered into the tent she called him and cried tremulously: "Charlie is going to elope with her. He's got her in Black Joe's stall."

Beatrice Rescued

Jimmy didn't stop to laugh at the absurdity of Cutie and me serving as rivals for the midget's august attentions, but he dashed out to save me from the humiliation of lying bound in a stall—though it be that of a thoroughbred.

As I lay prisoned and fairly stifling with impatience and the heavy odor of the stable, a welcome sound suddenly burst on my ears. It was of splitting timbers and heaving wood as the stable door gave way before a furious onslaught, punctuated by breathless shouts from the outside, which told me that the attacking party was a rescue party for me.

Suddenly Jimmy Barton burst in, followed by the constable, from whom he had escaped, and who was earnestly pursuing his erstwhile prisoner.

Quickly Jimmy explained why he had gone to jail and gave his commands to the constable and the crowd which always follows curiosity-rousing incidents.

"Stop the free-for-all! Black Joe is a ringer!" cried Jimmy.

And the crowd right about faced and fled on the trail of the next excitement which was promised. But Jimmy gave pause long enough to free me, and after I had brushed off the straw and oats with which I was plentifully bestrewn, he seized me by the hand and dragged me in the wake of the stampeding throng.

As we came out of the stable we could hear faintly and vaguely a cheer from the far-off grandstand. Closer and closer we approached. Humanity was on its feet watching the race of the magnificent thoroughbreds out on the track.

Jimmy pointed to a booth where Ben Wilder stood watching the race through field glasses. A moment later that surprised individual and his assistant found themselves under arrest.

But of their own volition, my eyes focussed elsewhere.

The horses were galloping over the ground with a lightness and speed which seemed fairly to push the track back from under their feet. Suddenly from out of the group of the three leaders a black thunderbolt projected itself. Lightly, gracefully, that coat of shining black sealskin darted ahead bearing the mechanism of life which animated Black Joe's beautiful body. Three lengths ahead of all the other horses the black thoroughbred crossed the barrier. Foam flew from his lips and his nostrils glared red. In his eyes there was the light of triumph itself.

A Clever Dodge

And then Jimmy Barton climbed through the rail and crossed the track to the judges' stand, where the victor stood with his triumphant jockey leaning against him. The constable and I followed.

The crowd waited—fairly titillating in response to its recognition that still more excitement was promised.

The constable walked over to the jockey's side and placed him under arrest. Jimmy picked up a pail of water from the ground and splashed it over the horse's right forefoot. A white stocking was revealed. Then Jimmy turned and carefully washed Black Joe's left forefoot.

Next he turned and waved his empty bucket to the crowd. Then he shouted: "He's got a couple more legs just to match the ones in front! He's a fastidious gentleman who wears nice white sox. Ladies and gentlemen, I wish to introduce White Stockings, the fastest horse in America."

The crowd went mad. It had beheld America's premier thoroughbred run a race. It has seen that thoroughbred restored to its owner as by a miracle. It had seen a gang of crooks unmasked. Mystery was all about. The American public was having the excitement of actually living a detective story. Every one felt that he was getting the full price of admission. And just then a constable came up leading the midget. In the rear followed Cutie Brown, weeping vociferously. And then the crowd did get "its money's worth!"

For when the hard-hearted constable insisted on arresting the midget and leading him away, the Dryden fair grounds beheld a strange sight: Beatrice Fairfax supporting in arms all too weak for their task the fainting form of Cutie Brown—America's most conspicuous "fat lady."

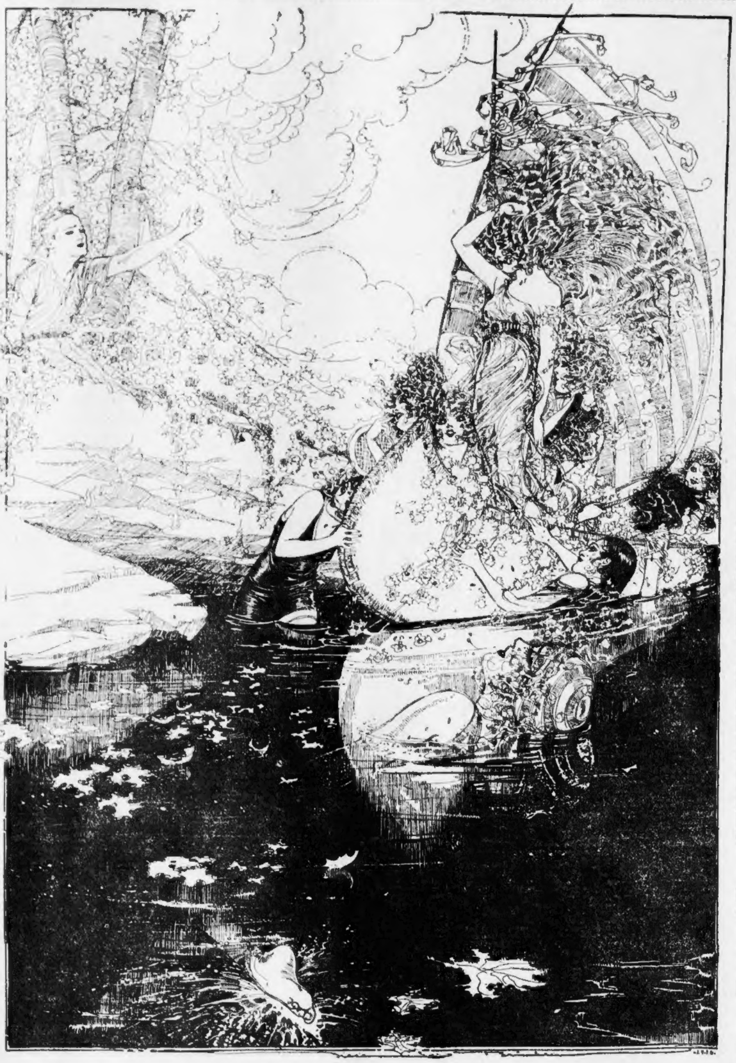
Summer's Gone

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service.



HO! did you see the Summer go? I was there to see her off. But she didn't know. I went to the place where Summer lingers last—where the print of her white foot falls before she goes away. The last little place where Summer's canoe is hid away in the yellowing leaves, where her last few flowers bloom, where her last nestlings stretch a wing, where the echo of her last laugh rings in silver, where the last wet foot of her last bathing girl pushes off down the faery water of Time.

I crawled me deep in the yellowing brush and saw her white canoe.

All the Summer girls—her lovely court—were there in their white and flowery hues, and they hurried over side; they carried their racquets—their mashies—their—summery trappings—they took all the flowers, the birds and the bees and the blue and white butterflies.

Summer stood straight in her blowing robes and her bannery hair, and she hurt my eyes with her shimmer; stood straight out of their flowers and fluff, looking back with her blue eyes aswim, and whispered—"cast off!" Her bathing girls waded out and pushed with their wet white hands—and the white canoe put out with no sound but the secret whisper of water against the bark and the rustle of a filling sail.

But I heard somebody sniffle, and who do you think else was there? The Summer-Man on the edge of the fairy water of Time—left behind and asighing!

Summer's gone out in her soft
canoe,
With a secret lip-lap at her bow—
She's taken the very last flower
aboard—
Butterflies, rainbows, the dew's
jeweled guard—
Tah Dah-dah dah Dah-[illegible]h dah dow!

(That's what happens when a person who likes a verse now and then tries to write one.)

The Wife's Share

She Must Inspire Her Husband with Courage by Showing Her Belief in Him

By DOROTHY DIX

Hope and courage are the foundation stones on which success rests. We can only do as much as we believe we can do. Take away from a man faith in his own ability to achieve and you foredoom him to failure. Discourage him by gloomy forebodings and you paralyze his energy.

These are a few bromidic facts that I wish to call to the attention of those wives who complain of their lack of luxury because their husbands are poor and they suppose they must get used to being shabby, since John isn't one of the kind who just compel success.

Most women whose husbands cannot provide them with limousines lift up their voices in this wail of woe. They cry out that their husbands will never succeed, which is the cruelest and most foolish thing they can possibly do.

It is cruel, because no other criticism cuts to the quick of a man's soul like his wife's. Of all the world she is the one being before whom he wants to shine and there can come no bitterer humiliation to him than to realize that she regards him as a poor, weak incompetent, who isn't capable of holding his own.

And these complaints of wives are particularly cruel when they come upon the heels of business misfortune. Perhaps for years he has kept his family in luxury. Then disaster overtakes him. The wife must economize. She must do without extravagances. Perhaps she must do her own housework, and does it with lamentations.

In this she is not only cruel, but idiotic. She is killing the goose that lays the golden eggs, because she is killing her husband's belief in himself. She is sapping his courage. She is filling him with discouragement and despair.

No man is ever down and out so long as his wife believes in him, so long as he can come home at night to a brave and smiling face, to a woman who inspires him with her own optimism. The man who has that sort of a wife always has another fight left in him. He can't be conquered, because he is bound to justify his wife's opinion of him. The strongest force on earth is fighting with him, and in the end he succeeds.

The man who never comes back is the man whose wife's complaints because he isn't a Rockefeller or a Morgan add the last straw under which his courage breaks. He is the man who comes home to a whining wife after a hard and anxious day, who has all of his mistakes flaunted in his face, perhaps before strangers.

In justice to the complaining wife who takes a despairing view of her husband and tells him he will never succeed, she seldom means half she says. She really doesn't think that her husband is a failure, or the prospects are as gloomy as she pretends that she does. She is merely indulging herself in woman's besetting sin of self pity.

It is a pity women do not realize how hungry their husbands are for a little praise and encouragement, how they long to hear from their wives' lips some appreciation of what they have achieved, some prophecy of hope and faith in their future success. The curious reserve that exists between men does not permit them to praise one another to their faces. A man cannot tell another man that he thinks he is wonderful, that his work is a marvel, and that he believes he is going to do stupendous things.

Only a woman can say that to a man. That is why every man must have some woman about him. That is why men marry, and it is when the wife fails to bolster up a man's faith in himself by her faith in him that he goes out looking for some other woman to do it. And when he finds her he calls her his affinity.

Between the woman who, when her husband lags along the road, says to him, "I know you have it in you to succeed. I know you are going to do big things," and the woman who says to her husband, "You will never get on. You are not one of the people who get on," is the difference between success and failure.

Between the woman who, when her husband meets with misfortune in business, says to him, "You've made one success. You can make another, this is just a setback. We'll start all over again, and do better than we did before," and the woman who says to her husband, "You've made a failure, you've shown you don't know how to get on. Take a small job and work for somebody else," is the difference between the man who comes back and the man who is down and out.

It pays to believe in your husbands, ladies. Think it over.

Anecdotes of the Famous

The Poilu, a lively little newspaper produced in the French trenches, prints this Joffre story.

The generalissimo's chauffeur, L——, was chatting with some soldiers.

"Well," they asked him, "what does the general say?"

"Oh, not much; he talks very little."

"And yet——"

"Well, the other day, for instance, in getting into the car, he said, 'Things all right, L——?' 'Yes, general,' I replied."

"And was that all he said?"

"Another time he said to me, 'You have a very pleasing appearance, L——.' 'Yes, general,' I replied."

"But does he never speak about the war?"

"Oh, not often. But yet—the other day he did say to me, 'Ah, my brave L——, when is this war going to end?'"

It is related of the Queen of Denmark that she one paid a visit to the Danish colony of Iceland, where the good old bishop exerted himself to the utmost in her entertainment. His most successful effort in that direction, it is stated, followed upon the explanation of a mistake which had at first greatly scandalized his royal mistress.

The Queen paid many compliments to her host, and having learned that he was a family man, graciously inquired how many children he had.

It happens that the Danish word for "children" is almost identical in sound with the Icelandic word for "sheep," and the worthy bishop promptly answered "Two hundred."

KOENIG TELLS OF THRILLING PLUNGE

A nerve-wracking dive in Chesapeake Bay when they were on their way to sea for the return voyage to Germany is described by Captain Paul Koenig of the merchant submarine Deutschland in his continued story of the trip today.

They dove at a spot where the chart showed only 30 metres, and they went down to a depth of 50 metres and then whirled round and round in a crazy and irresponsible fashion. They were sadly worried before they reached the surface again.

After describing the inloading at Baltimore, Captain Koenig continues:

"The loading of the boat was more difficult because it had to be done in accordance with careful calculations of our 'specialist' for loading submarines, Engineer Prusse, from the Germania wharf. Every ounce of the cargo being of different weights and bulk must be carefully stowed away into especially prepared places in order not to upset the equilibrium of the boat when at sea.

"August 14 arrived. All formalities with the authorities had been carried through, and we were ready to start to sea to meet those allied naval gentlemen waiting outside of the bay. Our departure was delayed because we had to wait for the flood tide in order to get out in Chesapeake Bay over the bar which lies near Baltimore.

"As we came out into the free waterway, where we could go at full speed, those who accompanied us slowed up and gradually fell behind.

"By 7 o'clock we would have been alone with the Timmins if we had not had another accompanying us which we could not get rid of and which seemed to us somewhat suspicious.

"He was a speedy gray craft, with a sharp pointed bow and a short, flat stern. It was a well-set-up racer, said to have eighty-horsepower and made 22 knots. It was said that it had been hired for a week and a half by a man who, for this purpose, had paid the enormous round sum of $200 per day, from which it could well be understood how much he valued the interesting sport of having a match race with the Deutschland. But he could not keep up during the night, and when the day broke the strange gadfly had gone.

FEARED TRAP.

"In its stead several fishing smacks now appear ahead of us so that we fear we are already in a trap even in neutral waters. They salute us by waving and we soon see we have made a mistake in suspecting these vessels.

"One steamer after the other glided past us and at 6 o'clock in the morning we were already out in the free waters and could make our first practice dives. After the long stay on land I wanted to be sure that I had the boat and crew under complete control and in perfect working order.

"In order to see that everything was right and in good condition, I gave orders that we should go to the bottom at a place where on the chart I read it was 30 metres deep.

"Thus everything became quiet again. The daylight disappeared. The diving ventilators' well-known singing sound filled our ears. In the conning tower I read the manometer, '20, 25 metres.' We diminish the diving power downwards. The indicator is at 30 metres, and I am waiting for the soft mud when the boat will reach the bottom easily. But this does not happen. Instead, the indicator shows '32, 33, 35 metres.'

"I knock on the glass with my finger and the next minute the indicator shows 36 metres. 'What in God's name is this?' I thought and took a look at my chart.

INDICATOR DROPS.

"Certainly this read 30 metres depth. We had calculated the depth so well and surely before we went under and now we sink continually deeper and deeper. The manometer says 40 metres.

"What in the name of God has happened? The hand of the gage has gone crazy and swings continuously round and round. Now it begins to get disagreeable. The gyroscope gage is as trustworthy as anything in the world and when it seems impossible at a depth of fifty metres in Chesapeake Bay the earth can revolve around as if we were in its centre, then there is only one conclusion possible, although a disagreeable one. We are whirling around down there in this hole, but the devil knows why.

STOPPED WHIRLING.

"I immediately let the drainage pumps begin to work and start them with the result that they only whirl, but with no other sound than the general noise as if it wished to say: 'There is no use. We must stay where we are. We cannot get anywhere.'

"I tell you we all felt pretty squeamish. During this period, the manometer dropped a little farther, but we stopped whirling around and were lying now absolutely still.

"After several attempts, Engineer Klees is able to get the pumps working. With a deep, howling roar they began to force the water out of the tanks. As if bewitched, we see the hands of the manometers begin to stir. Hurrah, we are loose again. We are rising. The hand goes up to 49 metres. I don't dare to believe my eyes, but for the devil's sake what is it now again? The manometer certainly shows 20 metres. Then it throws itself back to 49 and jumps once more to 20.

PIPES CLEANSED.

"We knew that in the greatest emergency we could use the compressed air, which undoubtedly must throw us to the surface, even if the pumps failed us. Klees begins to understand what is the matter. He takes hold of the ventilator and in the next minute a hissing sound of the compressed air gives the manometer a jump to the twenty-metre mark for a second and then back to forty-nine.

"And then the mud stuck in the big manometer is cleared out, pushed away in a minute with a little compressed air. Also the pipes which carry away the water are also cleaned with compressed air.

"The mud has been pressing into these while we were whirling around down in the hole. Shortly the pumps were singing in their old key and Deutschland arises obediently to the surface. We had been down for an hour and a half."

"People are asking for a reasonable presentation of Christian truth. They can't bear to hear the abnormal things said about religion nowadays, and they are anxious to have a reasonable and sane religious life given to them. These meetings all over Greater Boston will aim to promote that. Young people are asking constantly for religious information that will help them, not drive them by fear."

The Little Tax PAYER and the Big Tax DODGER

BELOW is a letter from a citizen of Mansfield. He believes that the assessors are taxing him too much on his little home. The AMERICAN knows nothing at all about the facts in this case. Very likely the assessors are attempting to raise no more money than the town actually needs.

Mr. Wilmarth's activity ought to be directed toward an inquiry concerning the taxation of the more valuable property owned by the wealthier men in the town, to make sure that he is not paying a high tax in order that those better able may be allowed to pay a lower tax. Mr. Wilmarth ought to organize in his town a group of men, who, with similar organizations in other cities and towns, will watch out for the operation of the new State tax law which it is planned to enact during the coming year. A constitutional amendment, harmless in itself, but passed with fraudulent intent, will allow a perilous amount of legalized tax dodging, and the classic tax dodgers, the citizens who own invisible securities called "intangibles," stocks and bonds in corporations, are all organized to carry out their fraudulent conspiracy, by which they intend to unload the expenses of the government upon visible property, our homes, our machinery, our horses and teams and automobiles with which we do business, and all the other visible instruments of production which in a wise system of taxation would go entirely untaxed in order that they might go free to increase the nation's wealth. Every dollar's worth of stocks and bonds which escapes taxation just so much increases the tax upon the property which cannot be concealed.

Here is Mr. Wilmarth's letter:

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—In the Boston AMERICAN of April 29, 1916, you printed an article I wrote you and you headed it, "He Laughs Best Who Laughs Last."

I wish to state right here that I have not done any laughing as yet, and the chairman of the assessors, who will "if a man kicks on his taxes jump on him all the harder," this man is now a candidate for State Representative, a promotion of the demagogue principle.

I was told by a town official, "They have got it in for you all right," and I was not surprised when I found they had boosted my taxes again this year.

If an assessor can "jump on a man" who dares ask for justice, if he can use the power of a public office to vent a private spite, if for any reason whatever an assessor can confiscate a taxpayer's property, isn't it about time the State made some adequate provision to guard the poor man's home?

Thousands of small homes in this Commonwealth are being thus confiscated on the instalment plan. take an electric in any direction and see the small homes advertised for sale. If a check is not soon put on this system of robbery come by here and see my place advertised with the rest.

A prominent city assessor at the Tax Commission meetings said to me: "The rich man has known enough to get his money and he will know enough to keep it, and you will never live to see the rich man pay taxes on the same basis that the poor man pays." An acknowledgment that the poor man is being robbed in the interests of the rich.

Is there any penalty for this appropriating the property of those not in a position to resist? Read an answer, 1 Kings, xxi. Chapter, in Mexico, in the European war, perhaps in the future history of this country.

The stability and prosperity of any country are founded on the prosperity of the homes. Perhaps the people will some day put in power a party that will protect the interests of the homes instead of taxing them out of existence.

Yours, H. C. WILMARTH.

Mansfield.

We Send Some Flies to Mr. Rockefeller

His Great Institution Will Quickly Discover the Nature of the Fly Parasites

Copyright, 1916, by the Star Company.

EVERYBODY admires the "swatter" of the fly.

A man who not only kills flies but looks under their wings to see what germs or dangerous parasites they carry with them is a public benefactor.

Such a man among our readers sends us a letter and a little envelope containing flies killed. We thank him.

Here is his letter:

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—In swatting flies I killed several that had small insects on body and under wings. Not knowing if they are parasitic insects or not, I am sending to you for information. I know that you will see that they are placed under a microscope, unless you know what they are. It doesn't matter what they are; I will continue to swat flies, for I wouldn't want a fly to land on my food or anybody else's with its filth. Yours truly,

A. H. H.

P. S.—These flies were swatted in a coach on a train between this city and Buffalo.

The intelligent secretary who examined the killed flies while we examined the letter reports that each fly does indeed contain under each wing certain tiny creatures—some of them were living when the dead flies reached this office.

These particular parasites on these particular flies may not be important. But they are interesting to the reader because they teach the fact that flies do carry freight with them—the deadly disease germs, often despised by the ignorant because they are so small, and other parasites large enough to be seen with the naked eye.

This envelope of fly and parasite freight we have sent to Mr. John D. Rockefeller's admirable Institute of Scientific Research—addressed to Dr. Simon Flexner, chief of the scientific staff and one of the most useful workers in this country.

If there is anything that the world of science ought to know about these flies, and the parasite passengers that lived and travelled with the flies during their lifetime, Mr. Flexner and his assistants will soon know all about it.

Remember that THIS is the most important fly killing time. The fly that lives through the Winter starts next year's crop. Kill flies NOW.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

Shakespeare Was Right

WHEN William J. Shakespeare indited a sonnet
Or spent half a year on a play,
He always collected the royalties on it,
For William made poetry pay.
"What profit to me if posterity read it?"
He frequently said of his stuff.
"To thunder with fame! To get mine when I need it
Is glory enough!"

TOM GRAY was a poet with a different notion;
He toiled seven years on a song;
And tinkered away with untiring devotion,
If he fancied a stanza was wrong.
He gathered in fame in unlimited measure,
When his work was eventually read,
But it didn't afford him much profit or pleasure
Because he was dead.

TODAY we have poets who sing for tomorrow,
Who say with a heart-breaking sigh,
My lays may not move this cold era to sorrow,
But they'll make the world sob by and by.
But if we were a bard, growing thinner and thinner,
In a comfortless boarding-house room,
We would rather have onions and steak for our dinner
Than wreaths on our tomb.

Good Business

A real captain of industry is the man who can make two prices grow where but one grew before, and there are a lot of them at work just now.

A Much Needed Vacation

Why shouldn't Colonel House disappear just now? Everybody is so busy with the campaign that no public business is going forward.

Safety First

Mr Daniels is again going to take the stump, but care will be taken this time to send him to States like Texas and Louisiana.

Why Do It Now?

The prayer for the President has been cut from the Episcopal service at the very time when he needs it most.

The British Sense of Fair Play

The Turks defeated the Greeks, but it never occurred to them to send the vanquished army out to fight the other enemies of Turkey.

The Workingman's Paraphrase

I cannot eat but little meat
My wages are not good.

The Power of Words

If all the speakers on the stump
Resolved to quit the game,
Results upon election day
Would be about the same.

Its Best Holt

Not only does money talk, but it is the most eloquent form of campaign argument ever known.

The Exception

Interference with the United States mails is a serious offence, unless, of course, it happens to be committed by Great Britain.

Everything Is Going Up

Though joy or peace or fortune
May be your heart's desire,
At prices now prevailing
It's certain to be higher!

The Sooner the Better

Apparently there is a crying necessity for government ownership of cows.

A Man's Job Makes a Girl Cross and Homely

So Says a Physician in Tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN—Boston Explorers Find a Lost River—Zoo Christenings—More Straw Votes—Beginning the Boston Public Walks—Fancy Football Menu—Brisk Life at Verdun by a Boston Boy.

Women and girls are working more and more into men's occupations.

"Splendid!" says the suffragist.

But a famous physician hurls a horrible wrench into the feminine machine by announcing that the taking of men's jobs by women and girls will have these results:

Make women and girls ugly in looks.

Make them ill-natured and wholly unlovely.

Threaten a sharp decline in matrimony.

In short, if the women don't let the men's jobs alone, the men won't marry them.

It's a timely and absorbing theme and the manner in which this physician discusses it in the AMERICAN tomorrow makes the article a rich contribution to Sunday reading.

The first of the series of walks arranged by the Boston Public Walks Committee comes today. The AMERICAN will have a detailed account tomorrow of this initial tramp of the series, so that, if you are not fortunate enough to participate in the affair itself, you at least may read all about it, where they walked, what they saw and other subjects of interest.

"Handcuffs—handcuffs, Siss—Boom—Bah, Billies and Bluecoats, Rah-Rah-Rah!"

Hear it coming? That's the class yell of the college-educated "cop."

Firemen, too! Fact. Mayor Rockwood of Cambridge has arranged for Harvard lectures for the police department of his city. Boston is preparing to give special courses for firemen. The account of this movement for intensive cultivation of fire and police laddies is an absorbing narrative in civic uplift.

The football gridiron waxes warmer and warmer as the season leaps from week to week. Cornell is in town with its bear mascot to meet John Harvard in the Stadium. Dartmouth has run over to Princeton to worry the Tiger. The Hoosiers are at Tufts. Boston College is looking for trouble with Trinity at Hartford.

These and other college games will be fully "covered" in the Sunday AMERICAN.

The AMERICAN'S football experts, including Walter Camp, H. R. (Tacks) Hardwick, Innis Brown, John W. Moran Jr., Ben Ames Williams and Herman Nickerson, will have special stories and pertinent comment on the feature games.

Somerville vs. Waltham High, too, at Waltham, promises a lively time. That's down for a special story.

Another chapter opens tomorrow in the nation-wide straw vote which the Hearst papers and assisting publications are taking on the presidential election. New returns from New England and outside. More figures, more deductions, more comparisons and more and more indications.

The late General Xenophon, Messrs Homer, Virgil and others in the classic set would be acutely distressed to read what a Harvard Professor says in the AMERICAN tomorrow.

This Professor, a regular iconoclast, says in effect:

"Take the dead languages out and bury them."

Good-bye, Darius and Parysitis. Farewell to the parasang and the everlasting "thence he marched forth." No more the catalogue of ships and the sulky Achilles. To the rear with Greek and Latin.

From a Harvard Professor, too! Imagine. But he says a lot more. He rips up some fine old academic ideals and pokes holes in educational systems generally. It is particularly good reading for Boston.

The real thing at Verdun, as told by a Boston boy, is a lively feature. This youth has been driving an ambulance at that war-shattered scene. He has been on the very territory where Allies and Teutons have blasted the rocks out of the ground with ceaseless shell-fire, where the Meuse has run red with blood, where the cauldron of war has boiled over and over again. He tells the reader just what it is like.

A Boston exploring party found a lost river in New Hampshire. Colonel Roosevelt found one in South America and somebody cruelly dubbed it the "River of Doubt." But there isn't any doubt about this New Hampshire stream. A girl, one of the explorers, tells you all about the discovery.

Now we are to learn "Who's Who in the Zoo," so to speak. You know the fun the public has been having, writing suggestions for naming the llama, the pelican and the fawn at the Franklin Park Zoo. At last names have been selected. They will be announced tomorrow. It will be nice to know the names when you go to the park, so you can address the fawn, pelican and llama properly, instead of saying: "Hi, there!"

It's a mystery. It's in Melrose. It has something to do with the police. There are hearings. Citizens testify—behind closed doors. Read about the departmental puzzle that is complicating life in charming Melrose just now.

Business de luxe is described in a full page feature of the Magazine Section tomorrow. The article shows how "Big Business" affects trades and deals now amid sybaritic surroundings.

The gyro-cruiser is described in a two-page, illustrated article on "New War Monsters" which science is planning. It is a "land ship," designed to travel across the earth and through houses or other obstacles, just as a battleship ploughs through the sea.

Other Magazine features include: "The Pitiable Weakness of Giants," "Motion Pictures to Illustrate Sermons," "Saved by Love from a War Spy's Fate," "How Artists Put Speed Into Pictures," and other up-to-date subjects.

Lady Duff-Gordon (Lucile) devotes her page this week to the influence of the East that persists in Winter fashions—the harem veil, the tufted cap, cloth of gold cloaks and sumptuous effects.
